Financial problems cause changes and shorter hours for HUB
by Jill Bakke

Several noticeable changes have been taking place in the Hermann Hall in the last few months. In talking to Mr. Russell Johnson, Director of Hermann Hall, most of these changes can be attributed to the school's ongoing financial problems.

First, Mr. Johnson explained the reasons for closing the HUB (Hermana Hall) over Christmas break. Annually, the utility and cleaning costs for the HUB are in excess of $440,000. By closing the building in December the money saved on heating costs was significant.

"Because of the harsh weather this year, we won't see too much of the money that we saved, but it (closing the building) did make a significant difference."

Also, the contrast with the food service that handles the HUB cafeteria wasn't renewed. As Mr. Johnson stated, "It was an unfortunate situation. They (Foord Systems) wasn't able to keep management. When you have that much turnover it is necessary to make a change. Until a new, permanent district manager can be found, Carol Manson, a long-time employee of IIT, will be the acting director. "Carol is a top-notch person," praised Johnson. "We couldn't get along without her."

When a new manager is found, Ms. Manson will be relegated to assistant director.

Again citing economic reasons, the HUB will stay closed on Sundays for the rest of the semester. Since the BOC, the campus equivalent to fast food, only grosses an averaged $223 per Sunday, it becomes an even larger operating cost. "After paying food and personnel costs, it (the BOC) just breaks even. On those Sundays when it grosses only $190 dollars, it loses money. We just can't leave the entire HUB open for that. The income from the Recreation Center is, unfortunately, just as insignificant to the cost of general HUB operations," said Mr. Johnson.

Along with the rest of the HUB, the rec center has also seen some changes. During the winter break three video games were broken into, and the contents removed. Part of the back of each game was pried off, a thin plastic-board partition broken, and the cash box taken off. "It could have been just about anybody students, custodians, etc. There's no way continued on page 4

Michigan Avenue fence to stay- this year
by Paul Valentin

For the past year, the Director of Physical Resources, Dohn Mehlhenscher, has discussed his plans to remove the fence along the east side of Michigan Avenue from 31st to 33rd Street. He believes the fence is unattractive. Once replaced, the campus can expand to the east more easily. Resident students are opposed to Mr. Mehlhenscher's plan. They feel without this barricade the dormitories would be susceptible to an increase in crime.

In an attempt to negotiate with the administration, the ATS Security Committee has met with the director since the start of the semester. He disclosed a gift has been specifically donated for the construction of tennis courts which forces him to displace the apartment resident parking lot to the east side of Michigan Ave. Mehlhenscher sees the unappealing fence as an obstacle to the success of his plan. The committee understands that he has postponed any developments on the east side of campus and has stated he is "sensitive" to the student's need for the security the fence provides. When asked by ATS President, Tanya Marcinkiewicz, if the fence would come down this year, Mr. Mehlhenscher replied, "No, it will stay this year." Later he said that lack of funding would probably delay it two, three or four years. It was made clear that he wanted the help of ATS in planning what would replace the fence when it eventually comes down.

The fence issue will not go away. Exec Board member, Mike Weidman, has been gathering petitions of student opposition to aid in submitting ATS opinions. If anyone has any questions or problems concerning the fence or similar issues they are welcome to attend the next ATS meeting on February 21 in Room 305 of the HUB Metzgarina at 1:00 pm.

Corporate recruiters rate IIT

It's that time of year again for the seniors of IIT. Time to bring out the suits, get that hair cut, and get rid of those punk earrings. Those who plan to enter the working world in a few months are now spending much of their time at the Placement Office reading company literature and interviewing.

Last spring there were 310 students who took advantage of the placement services and interviewed for full-time positions. Of these students, 166 had between one and five interviews, 68 had between six and eleven, and the remainder fell in the 12 to over 30 range.

Although there was a slight increase in the number of students interviewing, the number of companies who came to IIT declined from 110 in the Fall of 1982 to 98 in the Fall of 1983. Director of Placement and Cooperative Education, Harvey Kravitt, attributed the decrease to several factors. "This seems to be happening all over the country," he stated, adding that the current state of the economy isn't helping matters any. "We send out so many resumes and do so much phone business that we can't do it," he pointed out.

A phone call went out to say that the office tries to be as efficient as possible and, therefore, more companies have several openings rather than just one or two are now coming to the campus. Furthermore, the companies which do come to IIT, continued on page 4

S.B. bomb threat
by Jill Bakke

Evening classes were abbreviated in the Stuart Building due to a threatened bombing that emptied the building on Valentine's Day.

A phone call came into the campus police office around 6:06 Wednesday evening by an individual claiming to have placed a bomb somewhere within the Stuart Building. At 6:15 students attending night classes were notified and told immediately to evacuate the building. By 6:45 students and faculty were re-assembled, and by 7:00, classes resumed.

Recruiters comment on IIT graduates

such as IBM, GM, and Motorola, are now bringing in not just one, but several recruiters.

Currently, the outlook is best for Electrical Engineering and Computer Science majors with specific programming knowledge. On the other hand, Chemical and Civil Engineering majors may have some tough times this year. Ideas encourages the students interested in these subjects to pursue their studies since the situation is expected to turn around in the near future.

Pictures also made reference to these "boom and bust" factors which hinder students in getting hired. There are: 1.) A geographical limit on relocating. 2.) No career related, paid work experience. 3.) A combination of the first two factors and a GPA below 2.5. 4.) No flexibility in the position desired; no compromise in the job title.

The most important factor, according to Ideas, is the "job related summer or cooperative education job experience." If the student has related work experience he’s one step ahead of the crowd.

The following are some statistics and comments concerning placement and interviews. These are direct quotes obtained from feedback received from recruiters who have hired students here at IIT. These are based on responses from Fall 1982, 1983 and Spring 1983.

1.) How well were the students interviewed and prepared for the interview? On a scale of 1 (poor) to 5 (excellent), the majority of the recruiters awarded a 4 with the average coming out to 3.6.

2.) How accurate were the Placement facilities? Average answer: 3.7 on the same scale.

3.) How well was the Placement staff organized for your visit? Average answer: 4.3 on the same scale.

4.) In your opinion, how well does the IIT curriculum prepare students for professional employment?

Average answer: 4.0 on the same scale.

Comments about the responses:

The curriculum and student preparation are typical. Recruiters did not like the chem and civil majors. They did not share one room with only a partition between them. The placement staff (full time staff). Harvey Iruda, Mary Welsh, Lester Morrow) was very well liked by recruiters.

Unrealistic comments by recruiters:

COMMENTS ABOUT STUDENTS

Students should be more prepared to talk about themselves/school; what are they doing? How many companies they would like to work for and go for them. Students didn’t know much about the company.

Students don’t know what they like and want. Assert themselves a little more.

Tell us more about the technical and the non-technical background. Many students talk liberal about what is available in the industry and the environment. No career goals.

Students seem to have practical experience and very good job experiences.

Students here dress well for interviews.

Students need more coaching on interviewing skills.

COMMENTS ABOUT FACILITIES

Need separate rooms.

Especially appreciate the lounge and phone.

Health system needs improvement.

COMMENTS ABOUT PROCEDURE

Pre-screening system very effective.

Appreciated organization of Placement Office.

There is the only school I visit that allows students who have already graduated to interview. I would rather see this year’s students be given a chance to interview rather than fill the schedule with last year’s students, they already had their chance to interview. I well that the students would exercise more control over this.

Our company and IIT must work together to prepare the students that the students are more prepared for the interviews.

Try to get December Grads on sign up sheet first.

Placement procedures spelled out well on informational sheet.

Keep politics out of cultural programs

Dear Mr. Editor,

This is to re-rect the letter "International Fest Correction" made by the so-called "FACSS" released by IIT Technology News on February 6, 1984, not because I am a real participant in this China week of the International Festival, but because I totally believe your readers should not be fooled by their untrue correction.

I really hate to discuss the political problem which it is still considered the problem in the contemporary Chinese history between Peking and Taiwan authorities. However, I could not accept their intention to bring this ugly, sensitive political nightmare into our purely academic research campus especially in this friendly, joyful International Festival.

Aside from the controversial political topic, as far as I know, all of the programs executed in this China week are prepared, conducted by Chinese Student Association of IIT; not by the so-called FACSS. To speak honestly, I never find a single program contributed by FACSS. Ridiculously, I never see their participation in the free-dinner party, however.

Finally, I would like to accept our so-called "single-China" statements. The communist government of Red China really could not stay at all of the Chinese in the world, especially for those peace-loving people led under the Taiwan democratic government. It is true that Red China does have diplomatic relations with the U.S. government. However, it is only a political relationship, not like the Republic of China, a real friend of the U.S.

Thanks for your attention.

Sincerely yours,

Chung I

Questions raised regarding politics and cultures

Dear Editor,

As the sole participant in China Week, we, the Chinese Students Association son of IIT; and all students (FACSS), under the title "International Fest Correction" and published in the February 6 issue of Technology News, as information, the FACSS was fully aware of the IIT Programming Officer's intention of putting up "One World, Many Cultures" event, but they decided not to participate to or provide any assistance. On the contrary, over thirty Chinese students from Free China and Hong Kong helped in the planning and organization of China Week. We question the FACSS's suggested corrections regarding an event that they did not even participate in. We also question the desirability of introducing "politics" into this purely culture program. As a matter of information, we try to follow IIT's policy of keeping politics out of student activities.

As most people know, the Chinese people in the world are governed under three separate emblems, e.g., communitarian China, free China, and Hong Kong. Although the U.S. government does not politically recognize the Republic of China (Taiwan), this does not mean, however, that these people do not exist. To all of us at IIT, there is essentially only one culture, the Chinese culture. Therefore, we hope that the FACSS will be willing to join us in organizing all future cultural programs, in order to share our common Chinese culture and traditions with the IIT community. Any political considerations should be confined to the relevant Chinese aspects of China Week.

Finally, we hope that everyone enjoyed China Week, and in the future, we will do our best to present more examples of this beautiful and historic culture.

Tommy Lam, Vice president

Three points regarding Chinese political issues

Dear Sir:

We would like to make some points in this letter.

Sincerely yours,

Students for Taiwan, Republic of China

Republic of China does exist

Dear Editor,

I was deeply disturbed by the article "International Fest Correction" in the February 6th Tech News. The authors, representing a communist Chinese student organization, charged that the flag of the Republic of China shouldn't be allowed to hang during the International Fest. Twenty million Chinese in Taiwan, as well as those IIT Chinese students who made the Fest program possible, consider the flag to be their national flag. The existence of the Republic of China as a nation in Taiwan is a simple fact. No matter how the communist representatives twist the facts, the Republic of China exists.

Furthermore, the government of the Republic of China is generally considered as an ally and an old friend of the U.S. It shouldn't be too surprising to see that the national flag of a friendly country was raised at IIT during the Festival. It is rather shocking to see a group of communist Chinese make such irrational accusations to their hosts as to which national flag can be hung.

It is well known that the communist Chinese students are financially sponsored by their government and that their spokes are not allowed to come to the States with them. It then becomes understandable why Comrade Chiao and Yang, while painstakingly reminding "all parties concerned" about contemporary Sino-American history, purposely left out an important episode. Under their communist flag, more than 300,000 Chinese "volunteers" marched in Korea on October 25, 1950. Total U.S. casualties: 163,708.

Sincerely yours,

Li Ting

Oldie pick-
“Greetings” from Springsteen

Did Bruce Springsteen put out a new album? No, “Greetings from Asbury Park” was his first album. Only devot Springsteen fans have this record. This was almost the straw that broke the Boss back. Since it and his second album weren’t commercial successes, Columbia Records was going to dump Springsteen. Even his band started to desert him during this period. That’s why Bruce plays many of the instruments on this album. However, the “runtin and rantin’ of some important people kept his band together and kept him on the label.

Dave Rudolf date a bit disappointing

Union Board and Strohh’s beer presented the fifth mini-concert of the semester last Thursday down in the Beg. This time around they featured Dave Rudolf. There was some confusion on as to what kind of act Dave performed. He was billed as being a folk artist, but actually he was doing a karaoke set. (This confusion resulted in a small turn out for the concert.) He played rock and roll, some folk, and slipped in some comedy whenever he could. To back him up, Dave had Chuck Souma on drums and Ed Tossing on keyboards. This is somewhat new, since he usually plays a solo act. Lastly, Dave has been very busy touring with the band and working on albums. This year, Rudolf will put out a children’s album, a rock and roll album and a comedy album. All this hard work has earned him a nomination for the NACA’s Coffeehouse Entertainer of the Year.

The show itself was not quite up to par. It’s not that the band didn’t try to make it work, but the size of the audience did affect the performance. The music, which was more rock and roll, was fairly good. Dave shows a real talent for writing and works the keyboards into his songs very well. He also doesn’t limit himself, he excels in writing both ballads and rock tunes. Mike also has a pretty good, especially the keyboardist, who, even though he had problem with his equipment still did some nice stuff.

Another aspect of the show to look at was the comedy. Dave has a sharp wit and keen sense of humor. It probably would have been better for him to do a total comedy show. Dave always had a quick come back or a ready made joke on hand. If he had remained as a solo act, he would have had more room for his humor. However, he chose to work with the band which didn’t allow him that freedom.

Dave did get a chance to mix music and comedy. He recited two poems as “Killing Me Softly With His Song” into “Killing Me Softly With Kung Fu, Changing Names on the music scene, put it.” Mike also did his peak rock preacher routine that was decent. The music would tend to get stale after a while.

Generally, the show could have been better, though it was entertaining. Dave should have stuck with singing. If he played solo, much more of his humor would have been able to come out.

Prentender’s “Learning to Crawl”

by Kevin Eng

When the Pretenders first blazed on the music scene, their distinctive style was evident. Chrissie Hynde’s songwriting was highly influenced by The Smiths. She used her style to help her portray her strong beliefs.

This works well with the kind of music she plays. Her music is somewhat hard-driving as if she’s entering at the world.

In 1983, the band had a major crisis when drummer Honeyman-Scott died. Bassist Pete Farum was also fired from the band around this time. This left Hynde and drummer Martin Chambers to decide the fate of the band. They put together a make-shift band and cut out an EP. This was not the right band for Chrissie and now she’s back with a new band and a new album.

The new album is called “Learning to Crawl.” This new band includes Chrissie, guitar; Martin Chambers, drums; Robbie McIntosh, guitar; and Malcolm Foster, bass. Most of the album is new material, except for “Back on the Chain Gang” and “My City Was Gone.” Overall, the album is pretty decent. There are a couple of songs that leave something to be desired. However, for the most part the album is worth buying.

Chrissie seems to be branching her style somewhat. She still sings “Thin Line Between Love and Hate,” almost sounds like Linda Ronstadt. New to worry though, her toughness comes out on other tracks.

One of the things Hynde does that works very well is the way she uses her voice. Most songs on the album have good bass-lines. Most basists kick out just a “chug-chug” beat. Malcolm Foster acts like a rhythm guitarist and plays some great lines. The guitar, however, needs some work.

Big bands on WOU

Big Bands will be on the air beginning this week, in a special program series produced by IIT Jazz Band Director Neil Dunlop. The program can be heard each day this week on WOUI-FM 88.9, starting at noon Monday through Friday.

Big Bands, as the series is called, is divided into two parts. The first three programs from the history of Big Band music in America from 1933 to 1955. The final two programs feature music of contemporary Big Bands recorded from live performances.

Band director Dunlop will provide commentary on the music in each program. He wrote the scripts for the programs and selected the music to be featured. “The Big Bands” is being broadcast in connection with IIT’s observance of World Music, which focuses on a different nation each week.

The idea for “The Big Bands” grew out of a meeting of Band Director Dunlop, Dean of Student Life, James Voss, Herrmann Hall Director of Programming, Wallace Goede, Audio-Visual Coordinator Michael Lacer, and WOU Student Manager Robert Rogers. Work on the program has been underway for about a month. Music from nations featured each week in One World, Many Cultures can be heard on WOUI on Mondays and Fridays.

The Adventures of Penway

It was the beginning of a long, easy Friday afternoon. Sam Penway and Pete Zener were done with yet another grueling week of classes and ready to begin a rigorous program of relaxation. Pete, the program director, already had the beer cooling in the refrigerator. It was an unusually warm Friday and Pete had several parties to investigate. The coming weekend held the promise of unstrained fun, if not outright insanity. He figured Penway would not be too hard to drag along once he had a few beers. There was one problem though.

"Sam," Pete said, cracking open a beer and handing it to him. "We have to do some laundry.

Penway accepted the beer and took a swallow.

"Yeah. I know Zen. Last time I checked the closet it looked like there had been a traffic accident involving a bus load of Cabage Patch dolls. Mounds of cloth everywhere.

"Well if we're going out tonight we're going to have to have some clean clothes. I suggest we fill a few garbage bags, grab a sash and hand over to that co-op operated laundromat."

Most of the leads are boring as well as the rhythm.
"Back on the Chain Gang" stands as the best cut on the album. The beat is not too hard and not too fast. The guitar work is the best on the album. The song is in a 10's format with soft strumming guitar and a good lead in front of it. The lyrics are also well-written and interplay well with the music.

Another song worth mentioning is "Time the Avenger."

Springsteen's first were reworked by Manfred Mann. The songs may be familiar to you. "Blinded by the Light," "For You," and "Spirit in the Night." Manfred Mann electrified these songs with his keyboards and changed the sound of the song with just guitar and piano leading them. "Spirit in the Night" even had a mellow sax playing along with the rhythm. The originals are better than the copies, but the copies became hits.

This album is one of the great "overlooked." It deserves much more attention than it has received. If you are a Springsteen fan, you should have this album in your collection.

The word on the street is that Bruce is coming out with a new album in April including the E Street Band.

Here's to Your Health

By Randy Kunzelman

When people think of fitness these days the first thing that usually comes to mind is Jaclyn Smith or Victoria Principal doing a Chicago Health Club commercial or Jane Fonda in her workout video.

People are in too big of a hurry to look and/or feel good. Like most good things, it takes time and hard work to get in shape. Don't get me wrong, getting in shape can also be fun.

Most people will work to get in shape for two weeks or maybe as long as a month and then slide back to where they were before they started. To pervert an old quote “Better to have exercised and last than to have not exercised at all.” But exercise is more than just fan and games; it's life and death and should slow down.

- Warm up and cool down.
- Always do stretching and warm-up exercises. Finish your activity with a cool-down walk.
- Don't be intimidated. Do your own thing at your own speed in your own way.
- Learn your body's capabilities. If you are tight jointed and stiff, you may need stretching or limbering calisthenics for several weeks before starting an exercise program.

When it comes to exercise there are two main types.

1. Isometric Exercise

- Rhythmic, repetitive exercise that involves motion. Results in improved blood circulation. Can be aerobic or anaerobic (e.g. weightlifting).

2. Isotonic Exercise

- With very little movement. An example of this is pushing your hands against an object that won't move. Although isometric exercises may develop tone and can make you stronger, they won't improve your heart.

- When you've completed your conditioning program, it's time to choose a sport or activity to do for fun and fitness. Wherever you choose should offer you ample opportunity to:

THE TRADITION LIVES ON!
The Varsity Swimming team upset its dual meet record this past week with victories over Lake Forest College 70-41, and the University of Chicago 55-48. In the Lake Forest victory, the Hawks won 9 of the 13 first places, with Chuck Fee, Mike Swanson, and Steve Lida scoring 13 points each. Against the University of Chicago, III, won 11 of the 15 first places, with Chicago only getting wins in the 50 and 100 yard freestyle events.

The swim team now has 13 wins and 2 losses, with one more dual meet to go, against the University of Illinois Chicago-Circle at Chicago Circle on Tuesday, February 21st at 6:00 pm. By getting 13 wins the '84 squad has now equaled III's best dual meet swimming season, which was six years ago, when the Hawks finished with 13 wins and 1 loss. It will be very difficult to get 14 wins this year, as the team's last meet is against a Division 1 power, Chicago Circle. "We're short about 22 points against Circle," said Swimming Coach March. "This is a lucky, as well as a talented team, and may be the Great Tailored Hawk will shine in us that day."

A highlight of Tuesday's meet against Circle will be to see if freshmen middle-distance freestyler Chuck Fee can pull an upset in his specialty, the 100-yard freestyle. Chuck is now undefeated in 13 dual meets and needs one more victory in this event to be the first IIIT swimmer, since Cabin Clear, was undefeated in the 200-yard breaststroke event in 1974 on an undefeated season in an automatic pool in IIIT's Eck's Pool Hall of Fame.
