Scholarship Luncheon held

On Thursday, November 12, the 3rd Annual Scholarship Donor/Recipient Luncheon was held. The luncheon is held annually with a twofold purpose:

1. To offer the opportunity for the scholarship donors to see that there is a real person behind their investment and see how their beneficiary is doing.
2. To provide a chance for the students who receive these scholarships to see that their sponsors are real people. This helps explain the role of philanthropy and increases the students’ awareness of their responsibility to support their alma mater.

Bill Black, Director of Admissions and Financial Aid, was the host moderator. Mel Bernstein, IIT’s Provost, was the keynote speaker. Bernstein is the recipient of the James Asher and Elayne Rich Scholz Endowed Fund.

There were 17 donors representing 12 scholarships and 40 student scholarship recipients in attendance. In addition, several staff members, alumni, alumni parents, and trustees attended.

PLO formed at U of I Champaign

URBANA-CHAMPAIGN, IL—Conservative University of Illinois students invented a new student group last week that would keep a leftist campus group from holding a rally Oct. 21, but now they're afraid that the right-wingers used dirty tricks to deny them the right to speak. They've been "having a fun time" at the expense of the campus left," explained Greg Kosnovsky, president of the faculty-funded Philistine Liberation Organization (PLO).

The rumor, however, was that more than a hundred Illinois leftist students want the group disciplined for spoiling their rally, according to the Daily Illini, the campus newspaper. The Daily Illini blasted the group in an editorial for "attempting to control and obstruct the free speech of another campus organization."

Khomeini influencing students?

CHICAGO (CPS)—At least 30 officers of the University of Chicago student government have been ousted in the wake of a political scandal that has rocked the campus.

Within less than 2 weeks, the student body president has admitted to ballot-stuffing and resigned, the vice president has resigned, and 24 officers have been enrolled as a student and new elections ordered to replace them. The faculty-run UICGS Assembly, on the Oct. 14 and 15 race for Student Government Assembly seats is "not unusual to have political problems and bickering on student government boards here and anywhere else," said Illinois spokesperson David Rosen, But, "something quite as drastic (as this) is not common."

Yet at the same time, the University of Illinois Student Senate decided to invalidate the results of a Sept. 30 election which had decided a ballot box was mishandled. UNP's new voting, however, was over with before Oct. 27-28.

The misadventures at Security rally held

PHILADELPHIA, PA (CPS)—At least 200 University of Pennsylvania students rioted in the streets Oct. 27 for tighter security, escort services and better protection. In the night-time rally, football players were stabbed by local youths during an argument over a play. The Boston Celtics or the Philadelphia 76ers are the best professional soccer team there. But all 30 of the injured athletes—Robert O'Brien, 20, Joseph Pajzberg, 27, and Robert Ziegler, 19—were ordered to recover from multiple stab wounds. The Philadelphia Police Department spokesperson said.

The attack intensified similar student fears of crime on the streets, where two rapes, another stabbing, an assault on 4 students by a student who threatened me a lesson I will never forget.

The PLO's purpose is "to promote true egalitarianism and feminism, namely as academic achievement, laissez-faire economics and other petit bourgeois inhibitions"

Consequently, no one would say how many candidates were on the PLO or anti-PLO flyers. Some students were also seen campaigning for student government candidates.

Campaign conservatives. Kosnovsky was disenchanted with previous efforts by the left to rally support to pressure the state legislature to increase education funding. Illinois liberals, he said, held a fundraising rally in Chicago last week that quickly turned from camp speeches to appeals for judge Robert Bork's election.

PHILADELPHIA (CPS)—The top 2 officials of the University of Pennsylvania's Student Assembly have resigned in protest against the University's policy of racial quotas in admitting students. The group was founded by a student who said he would seek a degree and, some added, he wouldn't be wedded to the program.

1. Trying to close a door in someone’s face when they are forcing their way in may not be a struggle in you.

2. How do you know the assailant was heavily intoxicated?

3. Not seeing the incident and probably not an expert in knife fighting, how did the ‘medical authority’ know the victim would have died?

4. We never said she walked into the door.

5. We did not perpetuate the myths. Perhaps you know who did.

6. According to the campus police, no reports were taken until after the attack. Perhaps you are in error.

Points were reported/omitted as given from the campus police.

9. One of the worst ways to get into trouble is to talk to ‘experts’ who ‘saw the whole thing.’ That sort of information gathering in the National Enquirer. Perhaps you should stick to reading that.

A review of 'Street Lethal'

by Bernie Glasser

The promotional sticker on the album "Street Lethal" by Racer X (on Schrapnel Records) half-heartedly "warns" that "this album could change your life." Due to its "amazing, mind-boggling guitar solos." With this kind of fanfare, I was more than eager to find out what the 19 year old guitarist, Paul Gilbert, had to offer. While a lead guitarist doesn't necessarily define a band, it's usually through his (or her) solos that a chance is given for a spontaneous counter-balance to the rigidity of the other parts of the song. Not to say that the other "background" members don't contribute to the general personality of a band's music - they do. A solo, however, allows greater freedom for personal expression, whether the instrumental is a guitar, bass, drum, tuba (as in Billy & The Boggers' "hit" single, "I Stink But I Love You"), or whatever. For this reason, plus the fact that I bought the album mainly to find out how good Gilbert really was, I am devoting a large part of this review to Gilbert's performance.

When Gilbert is given his chance in the spotlight, he demonstrates very good control of the instrument. His "machine-gun" style sounds pretty cool (totally awesome, dude). Another variation of this effect sounds like a well-tuned engine ready to rip (look like nifty man). This guy practices his scales, that's for sure! Yet, there's more to a solo than going up and down the various scales and modes.

Don't get me wrong - I love to be able to play that fast. But I'd also love to play like Eric Clapton or Jeff Beck, who take their time with a solo, and let each note mean something. Playing fast can impress your friends, but how much emotion do you hear in a flurry of notes that go in one ear and out the other, before you even have time to know what hit you? David Gilmore (Pink Floyd) picks more guts into a 12-note solo than Gilbert can when he does an ascending acolian mode in less than two seconds. It's a welcome relief to hear him ease up a little, such as on the laid-back "1980's Feel" of the tune "Rock It!"

Now to give some attention to other aspects of the album. Many of the songs are reminiscent of Judas Priest, probably because the lead singer, Jeff Martin, sounds like Rob Halford. "Defenders of the Faith" comes to mind when listening to the song "Into the Night," which features some nice guitar hooks and has recognizable "high-tech" lyrics like, "Supersonic will set you free" and "infrared laser eyes." Some of the tunes suffer from mediocrity, however. If the silence between the songs was taken out, you might not even know that a new song had begun. On the whole, though, you can tell that these guys are trying to do their best.

voices of "Straight to My Heart" would not have sounded out of place on the pop masterpiece that was Side Two of Synchronicity. "Rock Steady" is a cool, jazzy R&B number with a few anachronistic twits to the late of Noah's ark. And although not as potent as the Jimi Hendrix original (or for that matter, Derek and the Dominos' remake), "Little Wing," with a convincingly smooth electric guitar melody polished to a shine, is quite creditable.

As often as the music lapses into mediocrity, the lyrics indulge in preachiness. The tiresomely smug "Englishman in New York" declares, "It takes a man to suffer ignorance and smile..." Takes more than combat gear to make a man," you see. We Americans reject Euro pacism not because the American temperament is able to learn the lesson of passively resisting Czechs crushed beneath Soviet tank treads in 1968--but because we're provincial brutes! In the brilliant preface "History Will Teach Us Nothing," Sting dismisses armed self-defense as a futile folly: "To blow up your children will only prove him right.

I go on and on and on...Nothing Like the Sun is nothing like the record it could have been. Sting should perhaps lay down his ideas on his ideology of a better world, and more on making a better album.

Dream cars on display in HUB

Since many of the cars had just a few inches clearance off the ground, they had to be wheeled up a special ramp into Hermann Hall.

On Wednesday, November 18, Peter W. Schutz received the Henry T. Mead Award, IIT's highest honor. Schutz graduated from IIT in 1952 with a degree in mechanical engineering. He is now President of Porsche AG in Stuttgart, West Germany.

In celebration, Hermann Hall was graced with the presence of 20 Porsches last Tuesday. At 5:00 pm Schutz delivered a talk to a mixture of IIT students, staff and faculty, and members of the Porsche club.

In his talk, Mr. Schutz emphasized how all students should have a vision as their goal in life. If you have a vision, the pain you have to suffer to achieve your goals becomes more bearable. This vision will lead you to success. Schutz told many stories about events in his life and experiences with Porsche that exemplified the success of his "vision" theory.

Sincere thanks were extended by Dr. Hassan Nagib, Chairman of the Mechanical Engineering Department. In his closing remarks he stated that instructors should not encourage students to do well and work hard just to get good grades. Instead, they should be urged to work hard and achieve in school so that they will be as successful as Mr. Peter Schutz.

Squeeeek! Some of the cars had four inches of clearance through the doorway of the HUB Ballroom.

Some students discuss the possibility of majoring in race car driving.

Volleyball season wrap-up

The IIT Women’s Volleyball Team has completed its 1987 season with a record of 34 wins and 9 losses. The Hawks won 14 consecutive matches in October and finished in second place in the Chicagoland Conference and the NAIA District 20.

IIT captured first place in the Purdue-Calumet Invitational for the first time in 4 years, defeating host Purdue-Calumet in the finals. The Hawks also won the North Central Invitational and the Trinity Christian Invitational, and finished in second place in the Scarlet Hawk Invitational.

“This was an excellent season for our volleyball team, although we were disappointed in not taking first at Districts,” said Coach Chris Meyer. “I am pleased with the skills, attitude, and team spirit of our squad.” IIT defeated many strong teams this season, including NAIA foes St. Francis and St. Xavier, and were ranked in the top two places in the district throughout the season.

The Most Valuable Player for the Hawks this season is senior setter Janice Kula. Janice, a co-captain, led the team in assists and serving percentage. She was named to the All-Tournament Team at the Scarlet Hawk Invitational, Purdue-Calumet Invitational, Trinity Christian Invitational, and North Central Invitational, and was MVP at Trinity-Central Christian. She was also named All-Conference and All-District.

Cathy O’Riordan was also a co-captain for the Hawks this season. A senior, Cathy was a strong passer and contributed greatly to the defense of the team.

“Our seniors were excellent co-captains,” said Coach Meyer. “Their leadership will be missed.”

Megan Regan was the team leader in blocking. Regan was named to the All-Conference and All-District Teams. Sophomore Kim Whalen, an outside hitter, was named All-Tournament at the Scarlet Hawk Invitational and was named All-Conference and All-District. Both Megan and Kim had strong all-around performances in important matches.

Middle hitter Tracy Leonard was both the Rookie-of-the-Year and the Most Improved Player on the team. Tracy was named to the All-Conference team and the All-Tourney team at Trinity Christian. She proved to be a very aggressive spiker and blocker.

Freshman Liz Cielabou, a middle hitter, rebounded from a mid-season ankle sprain to lead the Hawks in blocks per game. Margie Purcell, a freshman right side hitter, contributed strong spiking and setting in every match.

Freshman Sarah Verdun played both the outside and middle hitter positions. Sarah has excellent jumping ability and is very quick in the backcourt. She has the potential to be a dominant spiker for the Hawks.

Sophomore setter Lori Marino also contributed greatly as a consistent backcourt passer and served several ace serves in many important matches.

Swimmers take second

The IIT varsity swimming and diving team barely hung on to 2nd place in their own Hawk Relays last Saturday. Getting 2nd place to the University of Missouri-St. Louis and tying for second with the University of Wisconsin-Oshkosh.

IIT got only two first places in the 11 event meet, with firsts in the 300 yard backstroke event swam by Mike Messer, Ken Zubert, and Kit Koenig, and first place in the 300 yard individual medley event swam by Messer, Troy Ley, and Matthew Fernandez with a time of 2:46.7, which was a new meet record.

Two other records were set. One was by UMSL in the 400 yard freestyle relay, which was also an Eckart Pool record. The other was in the 1-meter diving event set by the University of Wisconsin-Oshkosh.

Bowlers improve record

The IIT men’s squad picked up 2 victories to improve their record to 5-1.

The U of I-Chicago match featured outstanding performances from Brad Novak, Brian Saletel, and Andy Labad. Brad led the team with 3-200 games while Andy and Brian each broke the “200” barrier twice. The final score of 47-33 and extended the IIT winning streak to 6 over U of I-Chicago.

The Lady Keplers also beat the U of I team for the second time this season improving their record to 2-4. Maria Contreras was the top scorer with 4 victories and a 173 game. The ladies fell to Western at home by a score of 66-14. Maria was again the high scorer, but Michelle Noyes rolled her season high score of 174.

Ed Mordy was in fine form against Western in rolling games of 201, 231, 277, 171, and 205 for a team high 1035 series. The team won by a score of 60-20. Ed Mordy threw the high score of 235.

Over Thanksgiving, IIT will participate in the prestigious National Match Game Invitational Tournament against the top 66 teams in the country. Coach Mike Millette is hopeful of an upper division finish in the tournament.
