IIT West in business

More than 700 R&D professionals working along the Illinois Research and Development Center (IRDC) and other organizations have their careers at IIT WEST. IRDC engineering firms and research organizations provide additional opportunities for engineers employed there to take additional courses. Many of these efforts are focused on developing courses for the second and third years of study.

Women and men from 222 Chicago and suburban employers for over 90 percent of the fall 1978 semester enrollment in courses at IIT WEST, the west suburban campus of Illinois Institute of Technology.

Working professionals know that the half-lives of all traditional fields are shrinking and that continuing education is essential to advancement in our increasingly complex society. It is only true for engineers and computer scientists, it's true for managers as well," says Erwin W. Weber, IIT WEST's director. "We have the half-life of an engineering education at about five years. To stay competitive, they must take steps to expand the knowledge base of all their employees," says Weber.

AT&T tops the list of employers sending students to IIT WEST. Rockwell International is second with 17 students, followed by Motorola, Inc., and Northrop Defense Systems Division with 14.

R.R. Donnelly & Sons employs 10 IIT WEST students. Telrad and the Electro-Motive Division of General Motors have 8. Amoco and Fermilab have seven each. Imaging Research, Commonwealth Edison, the Nuclear Division, Naico Chemical Co., U.S.I. Chemicals, and U.P.S. also enroll students at IIT WEST.

Indian celebration

The India Association celebrates Holli Festival with dinner in Hermann Hall starting at 7 p.m. on April 18. Tickets are $4.50 in advance; $5 at the door. For advance reservations, contact Krishna Reddy at 842-3481. The festival celebrates the cultural connotion of Holli with a brief insight into its history.

Holli can be briefly described as a festival of colors. People come to convey a spontaneous expression of the joy at the advent of spring. A festival in the climate from the harshness of winter to the freshness and greenery of spring induces a sense of gladness in the people. This exultation is evident in the manner in which it is celebrated.

The history of Holli can not be traced accurately but, its popularity is believed to be rooted in the ancient practices there are several references to it in the epic 'Mahabharata' in which Krishna is supposed to have celebrated it with the other citizens of Mathura. But, to infer

New campus smoking policies

In New Orleans, Tulane University's new policy banning smoking in all public areas as well as campus vehicles went into effect in March. And University of Nebraska Lincoln Omega men met March 14 to discuss adopting a no-smoking policy for all campus public areas as well as offices used by more than 1 person. Nebraska Wesleyan President Gary Schwerzinger said he was "surprised" there had been "absolutely no opposition" to the plan. But not everyone is happy about increasing smokeless campus.

On Feb. 25, University of California at Davis students sit up late on their cars and leave for a no-smoking policy in a coffee shop in the building.

The joy of Holli is only complete when the student body, 2.5 million students and 1.6 million according to Davis's student paper. "We deserve equal use of the facilities."

School says no to Playboy

(CPS) -- Texas Christian University officials refused to let Playboy magazine buy an ad in the school's yearbook. Baylor University President Herbert Reynolds warned women's groups on campus that posing for Playboy Photographers now on their annual tour are facing tough challenges for models and publicity.

The magazine's spring tour, according to Business South Texas, Athletic Conference, in early March, the marketing director of Fiji, with the help of Skip, TCU's student newspaper, to submit an ad offering international students interested in posing for Playboy.

But assistant manager statistician and others say the ad, "The ad is the representation of our magazine that we have to represent. And we don't promote racism and sexism in our paper," said Mark Wilkerson, the editor of TCU's school's student publication office.

Southern Methodist University -- also located in the Fort Worth area -- decided to sue an ad that was rejected.

"We do not want the ladies of Baylor University exposing themselves on a T-shirt that was in a sleazy magazine of this sort," current President Reynolds said.

Reynolds did not say what he would do if Baylor woman posed anyway, though he did note that he could not jeopardize their future at Baylor, but to some degree this would be a case of them jeopardizing their lives in the future.

The Lariat's guidelines, however, now specifically forbid running ads "offensive to Christians because of blasphemous themes or profanities.

Reynolds thought Playboy officials mounted these tours to promote the ads controversy to 36 if they can stir enough interest to sell a few magazines because they think they're failing.

Playboy Photographers already have been rejected at TCU, Southern Methodist and the University of Texas at Austin. The newspapers are provoking small protests at each stop, run the ad in its student paper, however,

Alex Rispson said Bianchi's decision was not completely supported by the rest of the paper's staff. After the staff met separately, he said, felt they should have run so students could decide about the magazine for themselves.

In February, 1980, the last time Playboy toured conferences, rejecting one ad in TCU a private, religious university -- became the center of a national censorship controversy.

Then-president Amherst McNeill threatened to expel any Baylor student who attempted to purchase or distribute partially or fully discarded in Playboy. When the Baylor students, who were editorialized against McNeill's threat, McNeill suspended the paper.

The student editors eventually chose to transfer to other publications or to employ the student woman who did appear in the September, 1980 edition of the magazine. The editors were forced to work harder, and then quietly awarded earned degree during the summer of 1981, long after media attention.

Sex and athletes

FORT COLLINS, CO. -- Athletes who abstain from sex before competition because they think they'll play better may be fooling themselves.

The notion that sexual intercourse diminishes athletic performance is directed by Dr. Loren Cordain, a study of college athletes in Colorado State University (CSU).

The myth, however, is a pervasive one among athletes of many kinds. "Heavyweight boxers quite certainly separate themselves for as many as 6 to 7 weeks before a little defense. Traiteuses and marathons tested this routine," Cordain noted.

Everyone loves the Beaver

SEATTLE, WASH. (CPS) -- Despite the best efforts of a group of students at Washington "guards," some one stole Beaver Cleaver, an engraved leather-covered brass key handcrafted by the Landmark Radio Station KTZZ has painted "5x5" cardboard likeness of the character from the "Leave It To Beaver" television series.

The program station KTZZ has reported "5x5," a cartoonish visual from a doughnut shop across the street, said his team had stopped after the likeness during the 10 days they guarded it. In some cases, the Beaver characters were stolen, dressed in a ninja suit.

"People don't care because they were not afraid that someone would pull their guard post at 2:30 a.m. one morning," just as their contract with KTZZ expired. Before the sun rose several hours later, the likeness of The Beaver disappeared.

Illinois Institute of Technology
The Academic sub-committee has gathered the course evaluations from Armour and Stuart. These departments run their surveys independently and that is why the information is inconsistent. Armour and Stuart are the only two departments to have their evaluations published so far. This does not mean the other departments are not participating. They are but the information has to be reissued by publication. This may not be possible until next semester.

The program is currently being extended across campus. The goal is to be able to provide the information as an aide to students in future course planning and be able to give feedback to the teachers and departments, as well as the rest of the university.

The score is the instructor's evaluation based on a scale from 1 to 5: (1) poor (2) fair (3) good (4) very good (5) excellent.

The score is based on the question: considering everything, how would you rate this professor?

ECE ADVISING

ECE students are strongly urged to see their academic advisor during the first week of pre-registration for the Fall 1988, that is, from April 18 to April 22, 1988. Advisor-adviser lists and sign-up sheets will be posted outside the ECE Department office (136SH) on April 15.

Many ECE advisors will have block advising on Tuesday, April 19, from 12-2 p.m. and on Thursday, April 21, from 12-2 p.m. in their individual offices - No appointments necessary - First come, first served. Alternatively, students may sign up for an appointment with their advisor.

NOTE: You can be advised BEFORE you receive your registration packet. Advising consists of planning your Fall 1988 courses. Your registration form can be stamped at a later date.

The ECE Department advisors will strictly adhere to the prerequisites needed to register for a course and will only approve a course plan satisfying the prerequisites listed in the IIT Bulletin.

Contest continued from page 1 of the company's Computer Science Center, Dr. Teng, a TI Fellow working in the AI lab of the Computer Science Center, serves as the host of the IIT Al Satellite Symposium series and has written a book on natural language processing.

"This contest helps TI extend its support of AI research in universities," oxide said. "It is particularly effective in explaining the value of artificial intelligence to prospective users. We were very pleased last year when our first sale for papers drew more than 70 entries from 50 universities around the world. This year we've broadened the range of applications to be considered, and we expect another strong response."

The winning paper in the 1987 contest, submitted by J. Douglas Whitehead and Dr. John Rasch of Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University, was "Expert Systems Without an Expert: Fault Diagnosis based on Causal Reasoning."

William Frederking, photography instructor and photo studio manager at Columbia College, is also a freelance commercial photographer. His work has been exhibited in many exhibitions and is included in the public collections of the Illinois State Museum and the Museum of Contemporary Photography.

In addition to his duties as the director of music theory at Columbia College, James McDonald serves as the music director and conductor for the Metropolitan Youth Symphony, the Chicago Metropolitan Symphony Orchestra and the Loop Group. His previous conducting experience includes the Fox Valley Symphony Orchestra, Appleton, Wisconsin, the American Women Composers, Midwest Chapter; the New Music Chicago Festival, and the DuPaul University Composition Concert.

Performance dates and times are as follows: preview is Monday and Tuesday, April 11 and 12 at 4:00 PM; opening night performance on Wednesday, April 13 at 8:00 PM; Thursday, Friday and Saturday, April 14-16 at 8:00 PM and Sunday, April 17 at 4:00 PM. FILMS continued from page 1 of Columbia College Chicago, is produced in conjunction with the Mayor's Office of Film & Entertainment. Anthony Loeb, chairman of Columbia's film/video department, continues to serve as director of the Festival which he founded in 1975. Maureen Alley is associated director of the Festival.

Dramatic, documentary, animated and experimental 16mm films and 1/2" and 3/4" video tapes may be entered in the competition. Works primarily for purposes of instruction, education, information, promotion or advertising will not be considered. The Festival is designed to showcase the work of independent filmmakers and to nourish the Illinois film/video community," says Loeb. "As an established annual event, it demonstrates the viability of our visual arts community. The Festival provides a vehicle for people who are working outside of commercial channels and without access to the distribution apparatus to get their work screened before a large audience. It is a recognized celebration of independent film and video artistry, a focal point for viewing the best independent work produced in the State of Illinois."

Originally conceived as the Chicago Filmmakers Festival in 1975, the scope of the program changed in 1978 to recognize the work being done throughout Illinois. It expanded its format in 1984 to include video. Last year's Festival attracted nearly 100 entries, approximately half of them videotapes. A $10.00 fee is required for each entry. For complete Festival rules, entry forms and additional information, contact Sue Mroz at 312/663-1600, extension 300.
