"It's a Festival"

by John Abbott
Rich Dominiak was sweating, but very happy, after a trying week. Last week was Thursday afternoon, 2 days away from Winterfest, and the pavement was still wet. A rainy day from what the chairman of the festival needed for a successful event. Potential relief fell from the sky; early on the Friday morning, the first drops fell. No, it wasn't drizzle; but snow! Fluffy, wet little clumps of winter wonderland.

Winterfest, ITTF's answer to Chicagofest, had found its home.

Preliminaries to the big day event actually started on Monday, with the opening of the Tennis courts for Ice Skating, and will run until the 11th, with a basketball event being held in the Bob. So what is Winterfest?

Winterfest is the answer to all of you who have said, "Nothing happens at ITTF. It's boring." Winterfest has all of the makings of a fun event, and you can do a lot of things to eat, and most of the events are free. At Winterfest, you can eat your hair down at the Video Dance party, kill your enemies in Assassin, get into a snowball fight, and cheer the Bears on to their Superbowl victory. All of these events are taking place during the course of the week.

and this is your guide to what should be the highlights. See the center pullout for times and details.

MONDAY - Bang-Bang, your dead. The Campus Wide Assassin game. Participants are given "contracts" with pictures of the person that they are supposed to "kill." If you kill your subject, you get it off your contract. The person alive with the most "kills" wins the game. This week-long event is sure to cause some chaos on campus.

TUESDAY - To the face. Snowball Wars. Provided there is snow (still), anyone at ITTF can participate in this good-natured excuse to clobber your neighbor with the cold white stuff. Just don't crash. Remote Control Car Races. ITTF has sponsored this timed event on the carpeted course in Hermann Hall.

WEDNESDAY - Talent Show. Open Mike Night. Just when you thought it was safe to walk in the bog...anyone can sign up to walk, "home is safe distance."

THURSDAY - Who's a Einstein? College Bowl. ITT students will find an intellectual challenge at this Jeopardy like event. Teams of 8 will compete for the opportunity to represent ITTF at the regional tournament.

FRIDAY - Pull-Pull, Tag-Off. War. Pull a hammering from this 6 person per team event sponsored by the IPC.

"My art is melting" Ice Sculpture. The artists will try their best to carve a 50 lb. ice block into their own tools.

Bop-Bop Video Dance Party. Pump up the volume, jam on the dance floor, pump up the... well... you know how it goes. The "icing" on the Winterfest cake will be this $2 head event ($1 for student organizations), which includes a giant 15 foot screen with video. But that's not all. Prizes to all of the events, including the students and queen, will be handed out. Special guests Rockin' Terry Shapira and Janmarin Diaz will be the MC's for the evening. A computerized light show will be supplied by "Comp Productions," and a professional DJ will take over at 9. So...pump up the volume...dance. Oh, and don't miss out on Winterfest. Come to think of it, you couldn't if you tried.

Political Focus - Bloom

by John Abbott
In the following week, we will be featuring as many interviews with the mayoral candidates as we can. This particular press conference, had been arranged through the cooperation of C.U.S.N. and Bloom's Student Student Network.

If this article sounds slanted, then I apologize. I left this interview with a newfound respect for the man who is running in third in the primary elections. The main problem with his campaign may just be that he's too nice. There is none. The worst thing that has been said about him is that "he can't win." When I asked him about this problem, Bloom replied, "We're about to change that. I'm going by Bloom's strengths are his idea. In one proposal, Bloom would like to have 1000 police officers off of the streets and put them on the C.T.A., replacing the desk positions with clerks. "We've got a lot of wasted personnel, that could be put on the C.T.A., but they're not. Because somebody's political clout keeps them there." In another proposal, Bloom would like to use a federal tax credit program for the purchase of low-income housing. "Use the tools that are available," he reiterated. When asked about the usefulness of the city council, Bloom said, "Last July I put a proposal on the city to reduce the committees from 28 to 15...I listed the committees."

But he needs to impress people when talking to a candidate like Bloom. He knows what the people are concerned about and he has the intelligent answers. When asked about the education of Chicago students, it was pointed out to him that Chicago spends as much money per pupil as many of the surrounding suburbs. "Well, a lot of Chicago students have special problems. They don't come from culturally enriched homes as many suburban kids do and therefore the reinforcement of the learning process at home unfortunately is not there, and I think it will be over time. Many Chicago kids have emotional problems because of living in deprivation, they bring those problems to school. A lot of kids have two jobs and by the time they find difficulty learning in school. So we have to recognize that Chicago school children have special problems."

Another reporter asked him, "Why are you the best candidate?"

"I know what I'm doing, number one, and I can bring this city together. If you look at the polls my support is equally divided between black and white and I think what happens if Rich Daley wins this election. Your going to have half of the city saying, 'he's the man.' We're going to have, if not increased, at least as much racial polarization of this city if Rich Daley wins."

Indeed, Bloom has the luxury of being supported by both black and white people. His own ward is mostly black, so the question was raised - "Are there any things you saw happening in the Washington administration that you would avoid in your own?"

"Our city has had some crises I would avoid like the plague; Clarence McClain being one of them. And I think that he tried to...he obviously had to solidify his base in his re-election effort. I think he could have been a little more accessible to all the communities of Chicago, and sometimes he was a little too combative."
The Unknown Reviewers...

When I arrived to the Bag to hear Double Exposure, I didn’t know what to expect. They were advertised as a top-forty dance band, but I had heard that they were going to play songs from John Cougar and The Guess Who. They weren’t the top-forty band I expected—playing only hits people can hear today, but instead playing top-forty songs that spanned musical history. And they played! They were the first and second set consisted mostly of music with songs by REM, Midnight Oil, Talking Heads, and INXS. A surprise version of the “wolves of London” highlighted, the second set which comprised of “Many Many” also in the sets were original songs by Double Exposure. The sound had the REM/Midnight Oil sound to them, but were different enough that they didn’t sound like they were trying to be pop. The first set received the band’s original music almost as much as the cover songs they played, which is one of the toughest things for a band to do.

The third set further spanned musical history with songs by groups like The Guess Who, BTO, and a set of John Cougar songs from “I Need a Lover”, which was released some twenty years ago. The set was delivered, in my opinion, with “Cherry Bomb.” I was really impressed with the power went out for the microphones and the band adjusted with a good rendition of “Wipe-Out,” and continued to show that they indeed had musical talent with excellent guitarists, keyboardists, and drum solos to power the songs back. The biggest surprise this reviewer came when the band played “Freebird” by Lynyrd Skynyrd. I was impressed and I thought was a surprise song in the first place—and they played it so well! The vocals by Dan’s great, the solo by John Westmier was excellent and the guitar playing by Bob Seger blew me away. Also in the band is Rick Danza on bass, and Pat Danza on drums.

On Monday, March 13, Tuesday, March 14, and Wednesday, March 15, a selection committee will be reviewing applications and interviewing candidates for the 1999-2000 Union Board. If your application is included? Even though the union hopes to have a full band in place for the first song—and they played it so well! The vocals by Dan’s great, the solo by John Westmier was excellent and the guitar playing by Bob Seger blew me away. Also in the band is Rick Danza on bass, and Pat Danza on drums.

LAST WEEKS QUESTION:
WHAT WAS THE HERMANN HALL "BOG" NAMED AFTER?

ANSWER

Hermann Hall stands on the site of the university's former athletic field. Donated to the school by J. Ogden Armour, it was named Ogden Field. Since it often flooded, however, it was known colloquially as "Ogden's Bog," or, more often, just "The Bog." When Hermann Hall was built in 1962, it was decided to carry on the Bog tradition by naming the new student ratteenshell in its honor. Central to the life of the school, the original Bog appears below in some of its most memorable moments.

CARTOON FROM TECH-NEWS, January 8, 1954. Another impressive variant on the same theme.

HIGHJINKS ON OGDEN FIELD DURING JUNIOR WEEK: For many years an honored tradition in the Spring, Junior Week featured water fights with fire hoses, tug-of-wars, and...well, only the participants could tell the real truth.

The Academic Subcommittee of the Student Leadership Committee met on February 1, 1989. The Committee was advised by Professor Peter Johnson, the new Dean of Undergraduate Academic Affairs. The guest of honor was Mr. David Dowell, Director of Libraries. Discussion focused on the following topics:

1. COPY MACHINES: Why copy in the library costs $0.10 a piece while they can be made in a neighborhood drugstore for $0.05. Mr. Dowell said that the copy machines in the library are more heavy-duty and produce a better quality copy. He is also willing to try and renegotiate the contract with the copy machine company. He informed us that these copy machines in university libraries are used in a much different way than they are in a business setting. Business usage tends to be fast and furious, from hour to hour and from month to month. Usage in the university library has peaks and valleys. Dr. Johnson informed us that it might be possible to lease machines during peak times. The Committee informed Mr. Dowell that we would like to see a greater variety of copy machines in the library, especially with respect to keeping paper trays filled in the copy machines. Mr. Dowell asks all students to report problems immediately to his office and then he will be able to deal with them. He also informed us that the University makes no money off its copy machines in the library.

2. STUDY CARRELS: The Committee noted that study carrels on the lower level of the library are clear of books and open for student use. The library staff has noticed that carrels are used for students who need to keep a number of books at a desk while they complete a thesis or research project. These little rooms can be reserved through library staff.

3. SECURITY: Mr. Dowell concurs with the Committee that physical security is not a problem at this time. People are safe in the library. The issue of security concerns vandalism and stolen books. Mr. Dowell explained to the Committee how, occasionally, a faculty member will give an assignment in such a way that security issues become a problem. (e.g., students somehow feel that they must use actual pages from a book to complete assignments.) Mr. Dowell informed the Committee that the IIT library is lugh an academic library and we must pay attention to the needs of both kinds of users. Closed stacks are an answer to the security problem but then it becomes harder to get books.

4. JOURNALS AND BOOKS:

   a. The issue of important books and journals not being available at the IIT library was discussed at length. One of the problems is financial — the cost of journals is increasing rapidly. IIT has not subscribed to an additional journal in the last four years. However, other libraries are cutting back on their journal subscriptions because they cannot afford them. The average journal costs approximately $2500. per year. However, Humanities and Business journals are expensive — costing approximately $300. per year. This means that the scientific and technical journals necessary for most research cannot be purchased. IIT is spending approximately $5000. per year with some of them going for between $1000. and $2000. per year. Foreign journals are especially expensive due to add-on cost. The IIT library, like many libraries, does some trading with other libraries for foreign journals and books for free.

   b. The Committee asked Mr. Dowell how new books and periodicals are selected. Mr. Dowell replied that each academic department has a faculty person designated as the library representative. This person works with the library to determine the department's needs. Perhaps we need a student Academic代表 to assist in this project. Mr. Dowell also informed us that all Illinois university librarians, whether they are at Western and the University of Chicago, are connected through an electronic network. If a book or journal is not available at the IIT library, the network will determine where the book can be found throughout the state system. Inter-library loan is a good thing to use in this situation. While it can take up to two weeks to get materials to IIT, it can also be done as quickly as four days.

5. MISCELLANEOUS:

   a. Off-site study area.

      The Committee reported that it is a good idea to develop an area away from the library, such as in the research labs, that will be available to students as a 24-hour-a-day study area. This area could be stocked with undergraduate journals and books. The Student Building was also mentioned as another place for such an area.

   b. Staff.

      The IIT library is currently staffed at about 60% of what it should be compared to national staffing levels. Part of the reason for this is that IIT did not run its own library from 1962 through 1981.

   c. Leisure Reading.

      The idea of developing a science fiction and leisure reading area within the library was also discussed.

From the Newsdesk -

Notes from the Newsdesk:

* No one seems to know how to make a free market offer for a free 20 word personal advertisement. Someone sent in a 30 word message. Our note about computer science is completely ignored. I've given up on society as a whole.

* I was nearly quarantined a page finished on my lead article when nature called. Upon my return from said nature hike, I noticed that one of my co-workers was standing behind the computer. When I asked what they were doing, they replied that they were turning the computer off because it then it may cause main power switch off not realizing that I had the other computer turned on. Otherwise, I had saved my document to disk. The article was great.

* Everyone wants an article done on their organization, and yet everyone is too busy with their organization to write it. If you want to write, get in touch with us. We're easy.

* The same people that complain about noise are going on around the campus, never attend the events. This week, there are no ex- ception.

* Notice stands what a deadline is around here. It's always "Hi, I'm going to ___ organization and can you write about this week, I would have turned it earlier, but hi, I had ___ to do. Please, don't get me too late on a Friday night editing the paper."

I don't want to sound too negative this week. It's just that all of this complaining quite frankly has me humming. Everyone feels that their time is so precious. We wonder why the paper decided to write about an article instead of their story. But no one's let us hear what our event will be. Two events. One of the events, the J. D. O. S. event, is this weekend. Many of the events, we hear about through the D. O. S. and who is doing an event. Miss America or whatever? Not even an event. Most of the events we hear about through the D. O. S. and who is doing an event. Miss America or whatever? Not even an event.

Some of IIT's veteran staff members met recently to discuss their memories of IIT history for the IIT Centennial Celebration. They were: L.R.: Elizabeth Kase (Centennial Director), Mary Manella (45 year veteran), Rose Zannielli (40 year veteran), Mary Driscoll (30 year veteran), Joe Syedko (25 year veteran).

New Weapons Test

The U.S. Air Force has successfully completed the first development test of a Nortrip inertially-guided missile (IAM) kit designed to dramatically improve the accuracy of field-free weapons.

The test, conducted at Bigue Air Base, Fla., involved the transfer of navigational data from a F-4 aircraft equipped with a global positioning system (GPS) receiver to a 50-lb., inert-MK 83 bomb fitted with the low-cost IAM kit. Launch occurred at 20,000 feet, approximately five miles uprange from the target.

Following launch, the weapon was "steered" by control signals sent from a small computer to an inertial reference unit that corrects deviations caused by atmospheric conditions, released before MAI...
Join Techmate

TechMate, a program provided by the Dean of Students Office, is designed to aid the new commuting students in becoming active in campus life. The commuter student is also informed about all the available student services. When you become a member of TechMate, you will be placed in a group headed by an upperclassman (usually in your major). The group will consist of other new commuter students with the same major as you. This will give you the opportunity to meet students who are in your classes.

All of our events will be held on Thursdays between 12-2 pm on a voluntary basis. If you would like more information about the program or you would like to join, stop by the Dean of Students Office (located in HUB) or call 567-9080 and ask for Denize Morgan—communication coordinator or Janeth Falcon—special events coordinator.

Our next event will be held 12-2 pm Thursday Feb. 2

Hawks Upset First Place Olivet Nazerine

The IIT basketball team soundly defeated Olivet Nazerine in Kankakee and knocked them out of first place Wednesday night by a score of 77-73. The Hawks record is now 3-4 in conference play. Ryan Kirkland, senior point guard led the team with 32 points and strong leadership. Charles Warenell, chipped in 15 points and had a team leading seven rebounds. More importantly, Charles held the number one scorer in the Chicagoland College Athletic Conference to just 11 points. Jeff Prather of Olivet had been averaging 24.7 points per game. Hawk John Lorenz also had seven rebounds and Mike Reak was in double figures with 10 points. The entire team played great as they held Olivet scoreless for the last six minutes of the game.

Divers Heading For Nationals

The Varsity swim team got the 2nd place trophy in the Luther-Loras Invitational last week, and at the same time swept both diving events when freshman Scott Ternovits won the 1 meter diving event and freshman Gregory Parkins won the 3 meter diving event. Ternovits score in this meet was 268.85 which was 3.95 points over the national qualifying score. Ternovits had some two weeks before qualified for the 3 meter board. Swimming Coach Dennis Matoch stated that a big part of the reason the diving team is doing so well is first year diving Coach Andy Przybyzowski. Andy has helped them out a lot and keeps them working at practice. Along with Ternovits, 3 National qualifiers are Sr. Jeff Mason and Fresh. Anthony May who are coming along well and who give out standing depth to the team.
