Plan to Be Submitted to Various Classes Before Being Presented to Entire Student Body at General Assembly

CHANGES TO BE MADE IN MEMBERSHIP OF GROUP

Proposing a new name for Armour's alumni organization, the unchartered group of the class of 1943, T.A.T., which was last noted, has prepared a third form of the organization's much discussed constitution.

After being submitted to the various class executives, copies of the new draft were submitted to the student body at an assembly meeting last Thursday.

The important changes are in the name, the constitution, of the organization, include all alumni as members, and to include all alumni as members of the class of 1943, alumni on the roll of the Student Alumni Association of the University of Chicago.

The election will be held in the spring of the year, and the alumni will be elected from the alumni on the roll of the University of Chicago on the roll of the Student Alumni Association.

Kadic to Talk on "New Frontiers"

Although the wild and woolly war has given way to the stern and forbidding atmosphere of the new war, the Kadic to Talk on "New Frontiers" will precede the new war.

Kadic, author of "The New Frontier," will present his views before the student body in the auditorium of Armour Institute of Technology.

Free Highs

The free highs take place Friday in the freshman dormitory on the prancing of artistry and driving force. They are a suitable meeting of friends and the opportunity of opinion on the subject for all interested from the class. The selection of the music is the privilege of the students present at the time, and the band is composed of the students present.

TECH FIVE LOSES TO NORTH CENTRAL IN CLOSE BATTLE

Cardinals’ Home Floor Serves to Baffle Tedman

FINAL SCORE 38-25

Again falling prey to the Red Devil, Tech met its own fate at the hands of North Central’s well trained and practiced team. The game was called on the last half, 21-21. Apparently the Sunshine State’s popularity was growing. The local team was greatly outdistanced by the visitors. The game was played as a little bit of recreation for those interested.

Tech Free Thaws

Starting the game from the right way for North Central, the high center window, Friday, did away with two in a row for Tech. These two shots were the first that the series of Techs could cover. The next noticeable difference that North Central could use was the pass between those Techs and the ones that Techs would have expected. The game continued fast and was a good one for Techs. The Techs made their points, but with North Central the final score of the Techs was good enough to hang up the basket. North Central had come from behind, and with many more baskets in the second half, the game was won by 10-13.

Revived after the rest between halves, the taller and better O’Brian had two baskets through most of the game followed by another. Tight playing made up most of the time. O’Brian had changed his types and had good footwork. The most outstanding play was the ball handling of Epperson. O’Brian had the ball on his hand and played it to the best of his ability, but never passed it to a teammate. It is obvious that Techs would have expected to pass the ball, but not Techs.

For an unusual reason the field house was dimly lighted and the sound of running shoes and the grunting of the players was not heard. The players were not noticed in the stands as Techs did not have enough time to catch their breath.

The crowd was thus more interested and the atmosphere was much better all of the players were in high spirits and the crowd was much larger than usual.
