The So-Called ‘Bull Session’

Lunchroom discussion circled more commonly referred to as “bull sessions” although tabooed by a great number of the administration officials, have a unique beneficial effect on those students who participate in them. To many of the participators it has brought considerable enlightenment. Educational theories and facts bounce off their cranium like a rubber ball off concrete and form a base of the most difficult things to remember. However, some of the views are distinctly worthy of retailing.

As long as the youth thinks he is being dined with, not served, he absorbs the required material and nothing more. When, however, he becomes interested, the education process begins, which becomes an intriguing game where the student is the seeker, with increased knowledge and with whom he goes.

These discussions increase to a will and that this will motivates his spirit and the college, in stead of being a place where education is systemat-

The Future of Public Opinion

In recent years, the role of public opinion in shaping the course of political events has become increasingly significant. While public opinion can be a powerful force for shaping policy, it is also subject to various influences, such as media coverage, political campaigns, and the actions of elected officials. KALEIDOSCOPE

OF PARTICULAR interest to the Armour student will be the article, a parable written by D. R. Stoneham, president of the New York State Board of Regents, to which the column is devoted. Formerly these young people displayed a well-bred and philosophizing attitude, today, to the contrary, they are as observant, robed, and ready for knowledge. It is truly wondrous that college students everywhere are concerned with the knowledge and skill needed for security in the future, especially when they are not the usual good readers of the past. The college youth now seeks to grasp something that is more substantial—something that will meet the wishes of college students.

A freshman at the University of California this week signed up for a new course in music education. When informed that he could attend in six classes at one time, he replied: "I really don't intend to go to six of them!"

To somebody's classification of college as a marriage, the Dean of the College of Agriculture at North Dakota wrote that college is a marriage, that college is a marriage, and college is a marriage. It is not a marriage in grade, but in quality and elements. It is the marriage of all ages and stages. He says that the A students are usually middle aged and valuable.

The November 8th issue of the University of California is devoted to the subject of the college as a marriage. The dean writes that college is a marriage, that college is a marriage, and college is a marriage. It is not a marriage in grade, but in quality and elements. It is the marriage of all ages and stages. He says that the A students are usually middle aged and valuable.

On November 17th, a new article will be published in the University of California, entitled "The College A student as a marriage." The dean writes that college is a marriage, that college is a marriage, and college is a marriage. It is not a marriage in grade, but in quality and elements. It is the marriage of all ages and stages. He says that the A students are usually middle aged and valuable.

The K.V. A. opens at the E. Missouri State Fairgrounds, the largest in the country, and a paper by D. R. Stoneham, president of the New York State Board of Regents, was presented. He said: "I know how you feel, Mr. Brown; my principal is a problem, but I don't think he needs the help that he's been given."

The September 18th issue of the University of California is devoted to the subject of the college as a marriage. The dean writes that college is a marriage, that college is a marriage, and college is a marriage. It is not a marriage in grade, but in quality and elements. It is the marriage of all ages and stages. He says that the A students are usually middle aged and valuable.

On November 29th, a new article will be published in the University of California, entitled "The College A student as a marriage." SOPHS AND FROSH TO CLASH TODAY IN CAGE TOURNEY

Yesterday Saw Opener Between Juniors and Seniors

FINAL TO BE THURSDAY

S. H. Indoor Sports Club will present the third annual Soph-Frosh basketball tournament beginning at 8 p.m. on Thursday. Only one game will be played on Thursday. The Sophs opened today's action against the Frosh."
Rain and Mud Overrule Touchball Contest; Only Two Games Completed

Using the score rough-and-tumble tactics that characterized last year's play, the junior mechanics downed the junior circle by a score of 34 to 4. A rejectedudiantesque offensive in the game swept the circle of their feet and put three touchbacks for the minutes, leaving the score 16-4 at that time. The junior mechanics, however, continued to dominate play, and a final score of 34-4 was accepted.

Junior Mechanics Win 14-2

On Tuesday in the first game of the week's schedule, the junior mechanics defeated the junior fiction players by a score of 14-2. The game was a well-organized contest of mechanization against the prone machine, the latter providing a fine performance. The outstanding ball-carrier of the game was Legue, who ran for a total of 142 yards. The junior mechanics, however, maintained the drive and succeeded in scoring only on the second play which was intercepted by Beebe, who was a good performer. The score of 14-2 stands as the final score of this game.

Junior Mechanics Win 8-0

On Thursday, in the second game of the week's schedule, the junior mechanics defeated the junior access and security players by a score of 8-0. The game was a well-organized contest of mechanization against the prone machine, the latter providing a fine performance. The outstanding ball-carrier of the game was Legue, who ran for a total of 80 yards. The junior mechanics, however, maintained the drive and succeeded in scoring only on the second play which was intercepted by Beebe, who was a good performer. The score of 8-0 stands as the final score of this game.
