When we find old grade of Armour "Wee Tock" in positions as head of C. W. Mountains, we are not old for the higher ranks of the "Wee Tock". The former head of the "Wee Tock" was a writer of mystery and his plots were a hit with the public. His plots were so popular that he was able to write a book about the plots. The book was called "The Plot of the Century" and it was a best seller. The book was later made into a movie and it was a huge success.

FLOYD ONG GOLFS MEDAL IN AFL TOURNAMENT

Semi-Finals Pickle Champ As Luckie's Finalist

Floyd Ong, a semi-finalist in the 1948 Australian Open Golf Tournament, was the winner of the American Golf Association's Western Open tournament held in Chicago last week. Ong, who finished second to Lucky in the finals, lost by only one stroke to the eventual winner, Don Budge, the number one player in the world at the time.

Ong's victory was a significant achievement for both him and Australian golf, as it marked the first time an Australian had won a major international golf tournament. Ong's performance at the tournament was particularly noteworthy, as he was able to consistently outplay some of the world's best players, including Lucky and Budge.

“Ong was a tremendous athlete with a remarkable ability to hit the ball,” said Lucky, who had lost to Ong in the semi-finals. “He played with a lot of heart and a great deal of determination. I knew he was a force to be reckoned with, and I was impressed by his performance.”

Ong's victory was met with widespread praise from both golfers and fans alike. “I couldn’t have asked for a better outcome,” said Lucky. “Ong deserved to win, and he proved that he was capable of doing so.”

The Western Open tournament was held in Chicago, and it was the last major event of the season for Ong. He went on to compete in other tournaments throughout the year, earning several more victories and establishing himself as one of the top players in the world.

“Ong was a true champion,” said Lucky. “He will always be remembered as one of the greatest golfers of all time.”
