Dr. L. P. Binkley, chairman, Department of Electrical Engineering

California Tech and Illinois Tech—sometimes known as Dr. Milham’s School for Boys—have a lot to be proud of. But when it comes to team spirit, there’s no comparison.

Dr. Lewis and his team went on to win the Western Electric Award in 1959. It is the highest honor that can be bestowed upon a team.

The school was definitely making strides as an engineering team, and it is evident in the way that the team is working together.

On the football field, it is evident that the team is working together.

On the basketball court, it is evident that the team is working together.

On the track, it is evident that the team is working together.

On the tennis court, it is evident that the team is working together.

Are Illinois Tech students nice or mean?

This question would come to one’s mind if he were to visit one of the Wednesday night Dance Club affairs.

Entering the Student Union Auditorium, one is met by a sea of green. The room is filled with the sound of music, and the aroma of food.

As one moves through the door, one is greeted by a sea of faces, all looking happy and smiling.

One can’t help but notice the way that the students are interacting with each other. They are all smiling and making jokes, and it is evident that they are enjoying themselves.

There are also tables set up with food, and one can see people enjoying their meals while talking to each other.

The atmosphere is one of joy and happiness, and it is evident that the students are having a great time.

There is a lot of activity in the room, and one can see people dancing, playing games, and just enjoying each other’s company.

A Look at Alumni

A.S. Bob McFall, former student at Illinois College, says in his letter that the University of Chicago has done a good job of preparing the students for the world of business. He says that the University should not be too much of a business in itself and should not be too much of a fraternity. He also says that the University should be more of a home and should not be too much of a factory.

Letter of the Week: Co-op Bookstore

In the October 3rd issue of The Collegiate World, a letter was received from a student saying that the Co-op Bookstore was not to be blamed if the students did not use it. The Co-op Bookstore is a cooperative, and it is run by the students themselves. It is said that the Co-op Bookstore is not making much money and that it is not making enough to cover its expenses.

Hope for Women

It is a relief to know that there are so many women who are interested in the cause of women's rights. It is good to see that there are so many women who are willing to fight for their rights and for the rights of all women.
