Saratoga Trunk
Barbara Trunk, starting journalist and soon-to-be publicist, was featured in the latest issue of the Stork-Bill. Miss Trunk, as she so freely calls herself, is more than a journalist. She is a publicist, a writer, and a speaker. Miss Trunk is known for her unique charm and her ability to make people laugh. She is a true star, and her presence in the press is always welcome.

The story of how she got into the Stork-Bill is quite interesting. Miss Trunk, as she herself says, was a unknown writer until she met Miss Bergman. Miss Bergman, the editor of the Stork-Bill, saw potential in Miss Trunk and decided to give her a chance. Miss Trunk was hesitant at first, but Miss Bergman's encouragement and support gave her the confidence she needed. Miss Trunk has since become a regular contributor to the Stork-Bill and has even been featured in a special issue.

Greetings, gals. Now that Easter hats are a thing of the past, may I suggest the following:

1. Buy a few dusty old antique books from a second-hand bookstore. The more antique, the better
2. Find a good hat shop and buy a Kentucky Derby hat. A good one can be found at any department store
3. Wear the hat and the book together. The combination is both stylish and educational.

To those of you who have already started your Easter hat hunting, congratulations! You are ahead of the game. For the rest of you, I suggest you start now. The rush is sure to come later.

Importance

With more than fifteen million insulated "drop wires" connecting homes and businesses, the need to improve the quality of lines becomes critical. To learn just how much more tubing and other protective covering and insulation can improve the service, Bell Labs scientists have set up a "Laboratory in a Birch Ticket." The ticket is a small example of the kind of experiments and research projects that are carried on by Bell Labs engineers. It is placed on a bell telephone pole to test the effectiveness of different types of protective covering and insulation.
