Technology News

Ha!

Trailblazers have been undermining the staff of Technology News. In fact, one of the editors has discovered that the author of the "no stripes at Illinois Tech" letter last week's Campus Comments is a member of Technology News. He has been duly cuffed and whisked to the dormitory. In this pre-Technology News days that novelty was a normal, everyday human event. He broke it to me at 2 a.m., the third time of the night.

The and denticity of the once-grey reporter does bring up an interesting point. I feel that Tech News may have been overly harsh on letters that were too lit up to be published in "Campus Comments!". In fact, most Technology News rely on their own reporters for letters of any kind.

"ITSA, What's That?"

One of the few places on campus where there was no crowding was at last Wednesday's ITSA meeting. The chairs for the officers were well filled, and a sprinkling of appropriate spectators were in the background. But no one was interested in seeing how their students government worked until they were. For all the average Techers cared the ITSA could have given the school the Rock Island and Chicago.

What was the cause of this and "boycott?" One of the leaders of the "boycott" was None on John Maki, ITSA President or the other editors. Notice the meeting displayed prominently in the Student Union building well in advance and announcements of meetings were made in Technology News. No, the blame falls squarely on the shoulders of those who care.

Had you homework? Sure, do the ten representatives who were grading the homework of the meeting. What could you do at the meeting? Become informed as to what the Techers are doing (are you) and what they are doing. Find out where they are going. What is the meeting of the Techers? If you are not interested in the meeting, No, nor are citizens of Illinois Tech interested in Techers.

You're part of the Techers. You care about Illinois Tech. Are you part of the group that keeps Illinois Tech rolling? Are you interested in the right and political opinions of the Techers? If you aren't, go to the Techers and talk to the Techers. If you are, join them and become part of the group.

IIT Graduate House Is Former Landmark of "Millionaires' Row"

The story on the lawn says "Illinois Institute of Technology, Three Blocks West!" But you don't have to walk three blocks to view one of the most intriguing and little-known IIT buildings. The Illinois Tech Graduate House stands on the corner of S.33rd and Michigan Ave., and has been a residential landmark of "Millionaires' Row" for more than half a century. The imposing proportions of "the mansion," with its single central tower, and mezzanine portion, are proportioned to be more striking when seen from Michigan Avenue than when seen from S.33rd.

In 1901, John Calhoun, at the height of his career, built this mansion as a private residence. After a disastrous fire, however, an attempt to restore the park and market, the old Calhoun residence of $40,000 was destroyed, and a smaller but more family house was constructed in 1919. After its retirement from active life, Calhoun devoted his time to the Board of Trade. On July 31, 1932, an attempt to extend the park and market, the sale of the Calhoun for $4,000 was approved. The tower, however, was not restored but a new one was constructed on S.33rd, and the Calhoun mansion became a private residence.

In 1918, the building was used as a private residence, until 1919. The Calhoun mansion became a private residence, and a new one was constructed on S.33rd, and the Calhoun mansion became a private residence.

Q. How long is a second?
A. Sometimes it's 3½ YEARS

One second is not always one-thirty-seventh of a minute—not in telephone mathematics. Suppose, for example, you find a new method that cuts just one second from the time it takes to process a call. Then apply that saving throughout the Bell System where some 115,000,000 calls are handled a month. The time saved every thirty days equals 3½ years!
Three German Instructors Included in Language & Literature Department

For the first time in the history of Illinois Tech, the language and literature department has three instructors teaching German. At present, there are five classes numbering 140 students in beginning classes, and five advanced classes.

New additions to the German staff, headed by Dr. P. E. Biehler, assistant professor of German, are: Dr. Virgil Warren and Mr. Fritz Abels.

Dr. Warren left the staff of Bowling Green Radio College, Ohio, in December 1942. He was attached to the 98th Army as a staff officer from March, 1943, to June, 1944. During this time, Dr. Warren acted as liaison officer with Italian and French troops in Italy, and added in the translation of captured enemy documents.

With the establishment of the Army university at Florence, Italy, Dr. Warren became the head of the language division. Ten languages were taught by a total of 95 instructors.

Teaching at Florence under Dr. Warren was Mr. Abels, who had returned from his service in the United States Marine Corps. The two men met again, when Mr. Abels was transferred to Illinois Tech to pursue advanced electrical research.

Discussing the increase in the number of students of German, both men said the course was an interest in foreign languages aroused by foreign service in the armed forces, and the greater number of students working for possible doctoral degrees. ITT requires that a candidate for a doctor's degree know German and other French or Russian.

Quitting the necessary knowledge, we may lose sight of the need for education. Quoting J. H. Luce, "If the institution of a long and pleasant tradition, if character with great spirit in great force, be not an element of surpassing value in any education that is worthy of the name, then let us frankly recognize that we are concerned with producing the inferior of a machine, we can no longer be interested in the making of men."

"For us to have a complete education, it is imperative to learn and understand the world beyond our own specialized field, so that the complexities of civilization can be solved in an intelligent manner. The liberal studies give a background in this direction."

This requires, above and beyond the formal studies, continuous thought and observation. We are citizens in a Free Democracy, thus, we guard our own display. It is incumbent upon each of us to strive towards enlightenment and community betterment. This task is difficult, but it is our responsibility.
