Tells plight of German colleges

Speaking before an all-school assembly Tuesday, Walter Halfstein, president of the University of Frankfurt-on-Main, indicated that lack of funds and faculty members were major problems facing German universities and students.

"Normally the University of Frankfurt-on-Main has a teaching staff of 840. When it reopened in 1949, it had 300 members," said Dr. Halfstein.

One reason given for the current shortages of instructors was the policy of the Nazi regime which discouraged students from teaching their subjects. As a result, the government, in order to maintain a teaching staff, hired more instructors from universities abroad.

Dr. Halfstein noted, "The present political situation in Germany has encouraged many German instructors to remain in their native country. It is the duty of the educational systems of the world to be aware of this situation, and to cooperate in the development of the educational systems of the world.

Column on popular pro's asked as new feature

To The Editor:

We feel it is time that some of the outstanding teachers on campus received recognition for good teaching. We have run a "Teacher of the Month" column. Selection of teachers would be made by students who have recommended a teacher for this column, listing reasons for their choice, he or she would then be eligible for write-ups.

The purpose of the column will not be to put individual instructors on the honor roll, but rather to point out publicly the qualities most admired by students. We believe as we see it.

BY RAY PASK
Editor-in-Chief

I had a nice feeling this week, lying on my back in the sun, as Technology News went to press for the first time without the aid of its editor-in-chief.

I have attempted since last fall to let the paper go as a going concern, guided by the "shut it all up" in procedures and policies, but not dependent upon him for the run-of-the-mill decisions. And it must be said off-the-record of these.

LISTENING TO THE RADIO while catching up on my refereeing duties, I was certainly aware at some of the junk that gets over the airwaves these days. If you need a laugh, try Harry B. Tyler's Teabreak Land and Mike's, sponsored by General Motors of Sundays at 3:15. Russell's, a nightly JACF show on which you'll be entertained by a couple of the Cabinet's cronies.

WHILE TALKING ABOUT THE Chicago printers situation with the composing room foreman last night, I got a picture of the union fight that you certainly can't get by through the usual propaganda sources.

This forestor paid over $3,000 union dues last year, and is proud of every cent of it. Publishers such as this one are supporting the striking printers, because the Chicago printer, as a group, know it is in their fight too.

In their battle with their unions, in the last 60 years the ITU has come to be a powerful instrument of self-protection and improvement. The wage increase being fought for by the major newspaper shops have been granted long ago through the industry. The fight has been going on for well over a year now, and I've been caught up in the conversation last night that the ITU will win; they're prepared to do it.

ATTACKS PILLARS

To The Editor:

Some of my freshman days at ITU I have been respected by many active students. I have not been contented to take an active in any of the various after-hour activities last week. I had a chance of heart and decided to attend the Illinois Tech-Chicago Teachers basketball game.

So what happened?

I have to park right behind one of those beautiful people that adorn our "magazine" symphonies.

Like last year, I never saw a Tech team perform before, and the affair was no exception. Those pillars sure do an effective job of blockading the aisles. This set of Chesterfield cigarettes to the writer of each letter published. The letters will be submitted before 4 p.m. Tuesday, and my name will be signed, although the names will be withheld if requested.

I especially enjoyed the end of the second game. They led the Techs by one point. I felt like a blind miner in a coal mine.

The administration expect some of the fans to get抨击ed! I'd like to see the brilliant engineering graduates that dress up this materialistic setting arrangement.

BLOWING THE GAFF

This might make cents

I've been having an awful time getting to all my classes this semester and it wasn't until this week that I discovered why.

Being a very eager beaver, I followed the registration directions exactly and look what it got me! I took my books from the sample registration card in the back of the book of class listings and now I have two 32-inch classes on Tuesday.

No doubt if I go to the registrar's office and try to have these classes changed, it will cost me five dollars for each class, but I have an idea by which the school can make a lot of extra money.

With an enrollment of the size we have, there must be well over 2,000 students with no conflicts in their programs. Since they did not follow instructions, you can be justified. Now, with a fee of five dollars per student, I should be able to collect over $10,000 dollars. This is a very good supposition. I will let the school use the idea for me. (The five dollars will pay for my conflict.) In this way the school is richer, I can ride, my credit is strengthened, and those who so flagrantly violated instructions and have no conflicts are lined up for the trouble. I am now causing the registrar. Everybody win!

Juniors will meet, decide dance issue

A final and important answer to the parent question of whether the Junior class dance should be formal, semi-formal, or both is being sought by Junior class officers.

An open meeting is scheduled for Tuesday at 7:15 PM in SW 32. A public airing of both sides is expected in order to bring the issue to a conclusion.

Hospitality That All America Understands

Dr. Heilmeier compared the 34 German universities with 1,164 of the United States. He noted that the German universities are on the graduate level. The first two years of American college are taken up in German secondary schools.

The state exercised a rigid control over German universities, said Heilmeier. "All teachers are state officers and the government handles all financial matters, exams, and appointments."

Heilmeier concluded that this strict supervision has hampered the expansion of German universities.

IIT's fluid lab not a 'brig'Equipment old, but can test beer barrelsBy Andy ArensNo, that cage in the dungeon of Main 305 is the school's brig. It's Illinois Tech's fluid lab. This lab has its beginning back in the days when Professor Phil C. Bronz was in charge of the mechanical engineering department. It was at that time that the MR-1 lab was set up, and later when Professor Bronz took over the CE department, it came under CE super-vision. Although unacquainted, has been adequate to demonstrate the fundamentals of fluid mechanics. Recently an apparatus has been added to the flow properties of pipes, vane, and fittings. This was put in to acquire Ming students with the features involved in their own special field. Because of the location, the fluid lab has acquired a practical name, "pump lab" and "flowed mechanics lab." The reason for the latter lies in the fact that every time there is more than an upwards of rain, the lab collects the community's rain water to quite a dirth sometimes.C. G. Peller, who has been in charge of the lab since 1944, believes that the most enjoyable time he has spent there involved a research project to test aluminum beer barrels. The problem was to determine the amount of fluid pressure the barrels would take, but in certain cases, it is required that the real test was to see how fast they could be emptied when full of beer, as stated. Mr. Peller has actual results in the experiment. Plans are being drafted for a fluid lab for the contemplated CE building. All Star squads begin workouts
Arches, Wolves, Trojans pace favored IM's

A fun-packed all-star team that would have to take a back seat to no one based on individual athletic ability was selected for the Panther Invitational this morning, as the Technology News. All Star teams were made public.

Led by forward Bruce Tеннant, who scored 19 points, the Wolves, pace favored IM's, defeated the Archers 78-74, Friday, and the 24th annual meet ends today at the Technological Institute. The Wolves will play the Archers at 5:30 p.m.

The Wolves, only team to place men on the starting five, are represented by 7-4 forward guard James Duff, 7-4 forward guard Bob Smith, 7-2 center Howard Gardner, the outstanding point guard who probably will be active part in the Tour's march to the NCAA title, and the head coach of his former team the Chicago Bulls.

Since the balancing was open only at 1:30 p.m. on Wednesday, the contest staff of the Tech News has had time to determine the winner of the match.

The IM's, through the return of the team's star center, George Wood, have a chance to qualify for the final four in the league. The IM's, who lost to the Wolves 85-81, are on an upswing after scoring 78-74.

Seals plunge in city meet

The IM's men's team, hoping to better their present five win, four loss record, will end their season this weekend when they swim at the Chicago Interstate College Championships. The Techseals will be represented by Lloyd, DeFiore, and Davis of the University of Illinois, Gary Pier, and Joe Burch of the University of Chicago. Preliminary events are scheduled for 7:30 p.m. today at the B'nai B'rith gymnasium.

The meet, which will be held at 9:30 p.m. tonight, was won by the Techseals 323-111.

Why the pillars must go

In the first issue of Technology News this semester, it was pointed out that academic participation in Techawk basketball games was impaired because of the un-strategically placed columns in the gym. The response to this is that Techawk basketball games have been attended because of the number of students who have to attend.

The 40-yard free style track event was won by McFerren of IIT, with John Egan, another pillar, in second place.

Trojans cop IM title

By Ed Jennings

The chips were down last Friday night... the coveted IM Basketball championship was on the line and the two highly rated teams were there to try to match it. The Trojans showed they had what it takes by whipping the defending champion Wolves, 40-37.

After the first few minutes of play there was little doubt about the outcome as the Trojans jumped off to a 6-0 lead. The Wolves, for their part, could not overcome...

IF-IM spring sports program beginning

By Marty Levy

With the present basketball season rapidly drawing to a close, the path is clear for the next phase of the varied intramural and intersports programs. The Trojans, with a record of 9-2 and the title already in hand, will be among the leading candidates for the IM Athletics competition.

The Trojans are expected to field a strong team in the upcoming IM Athletics season. The team has been working hard in preparation for this season, and it is expected to be a strong contender for the championship.

Entries pour in for Tech Relays

By Dave Miller

With tomorrow as the deadline, the entries are in for the first eight annual Illinois Tech Relays. The meet is expected to attract representatives from all the Big Ten schools. The meet is a good test for the teams as they prepare for the Big Ten Championships.

The meet will be held at the Illinois Tech campus, with events such as the 100, 200, 400, and 800 meters, the long jump, and the triple jump.

Athletics hold high spot in Junior Week

By Olga Kopf

Campus air is vibrant with activity these days as HT’s planning for Junior Week—Open House festivities gets well underway.

April will find a great deal of baseball will claim the majority of contestants since it will include football, basketball, and tennis. Other competition will include the various other outdoor sports—basketball or volleyball depending upon whether the remainder of the month’s weather permits.

Class officers are preparing for their class reunion for the purpose of raising funds to send as soon as possible.

A baby contest for three new groups will be conducted as the afternoon of April 28 in the S.U. house. The area is from 8 months to 11/4 years, from 11/4 to 21, and from 2 1/2 to 4.

One trophy will be awarded to the winner of each group, stated Virginia Donovick, chairman of the contest. "Every year there will vary, the smallest being awarded to the youngest and the largest to a child in the oldest group."

All judging will be done on the spot by three judges and the Man and Woman of the Year. Only those eligible for a child’s entrance are eligible for this year’s contest.

Plants for a school-wide photo contest to be held in connection with Junior Week were formulated at a meeting of the executive committee of Armour Eye Monday. A special committee was appointed to work out the details of the awards, the identity of the judges, and the rules of the competition within the next two weeks.

The executive committee has also announced that a comprehensive program of instruction on a personal basis is being organized for members wishing to further their knowledge of the field.

Members of Armour Eye are to make a field trip to the Municipal airport March 13. Arrangements are being made with airport officials for a guided tour of the facilities at the field. Also scheduled for "Eye" members is another "Sunday Night" to be held March 13. A professional model will be present, and the entire evening will be devoted to taking pictures. The next regular meeting of Armour Eye is to be held in the club’s quarters on the fourth floor of Chapin Tuesday at 1 p.m.

Dangerfield talks on foreign policy

Foreign and domestic policy have been an日益 influential in the beginning of World War II and it is no longer possible to distinguish between them.

Stephen Dangerfield, president of political science at the University of Wisconsin, made that statement last Friday in a speech presented before a special meeting of IIT students.

The lecture entitled "New Foreign Policy In World," was the second in a series of civic education lectures sponsored by the National Federation for Education in America. The lecture presented the history of foreign policy from its early minor role in government affairs.

Vote nears for "pair of year"

Every Tech Week in Illinois Tech's campus will have the opportunity of taking part in Junior West-Appel Illinois activities by voting for the Man and Woman of the Year.

The office of the dean of students is compiling a list of all students eligible for this contest. This list will be published in Tech News before the election and all people whose names do not appear on it will have the right to request that they be added. No and women in their seniors year who have been active in campus organizations, publications and class offices are being considered by the dean's office.

The election commission of TTA, headed by Jim Wangerstorn and Bob Stohler will conduct the election.
