Harold Urey, main speaker at assembly

“World Peace and the A-Bomb” will be the subject of a talk by Harold C. Urey, the annual Honors assembly to be held Nov. 20 in room 1113.

Dr. Urey, now a member of the staff which developed the A-bomb, was the Nobel prize for his discovery of deuterium. At present he holds the positions of University of Chicago Institute of Nuclear Studies.

Awards to be presented include the Outstanding Achievement Awards in the MLL, EE, and EB departments. There will be a special award to the outstanding freshman in the EB department.

The Honors assembly is open only to members of the university or its staff. Admission is free.

No reports, no mailboxes, ACSA states

Student organizations will be dispersed around the building during the coming week. Each organization will be allotted a space.

Several organizations have not yet turned in their reports to the administration. These organizations are: Alpha Xi Delta, Pi Sigma, Phi Kappa Sigma, Theta Xi, Alpha Xi Delta, Pi Sigma, Phi Kappa Sigma.

The following organizations are currently being represented: American Chemical Society, Business and Professional Women, Sigma Nu, Sigma Chi, Alpha Xi Delta, Pi Sigma, Phi Kappa Sigma.

Forms have been placed in these organizations’ hands, and must be filled out and turned in to ACSA by noon Monday. Failure to comply with this order will mean that no space will be made available to the organization.

Home ec club to hold dance

The Home Ec. club will inaugurate its social season with a dance at 8 p.m. November 15, in the R.H. Lounge.

The social is to be a turnabout, with the girls selecting the boys and bringing covers for the dates.

Many girls are desirous of being selected as sponsors of the dance. "This is the year to stop and smell the roses," one girl says.

The dance, to be held at 8:30, will feature fried chicken, and the music will be supplied by the students.

The club members will serve punch and cake throughout the evening."
Students break up illegal class, organize protective association

Last week, an unscheduled architecture class field during the free period was broken up by a "pop rally," held to expel the teaching of the Illinois Institute of Technology in the State Street theater.

The object of the rally, of course, was to prevent the instructor from clinically holding a class during a period set aside for meetings. Since the students were afraid that the instructor would "seek vengeance," if they complained through regular channels, they used this method for preserving anonymity.

Out of this meeting emerged Camp Protective Association, its purpose being to "protect the students against exploitation" by the faculty and administration. Although the value of such an organization is evident, C. E. Hanks, dean of students, told the moderator of the group, John O'Toole, that the new association would not get his approval because its work infringes on the function of ITS.

Since approval by the dean of students is necessary in order to be a recognized student organization, CPA either will have to alter its purposes, become a member of ITS, or otherwise remain an illegal student body.

One of CPA's first projects will be to renew the proposal for Ogden.

It is hoped that the association may provide the material while the students provide the labor. Attempts are being made to have this long-range project start next spring.

This is how CPA works: If a class is unscheduled, the room is empty as far as the dean of students' office. The CPA then schedules a pop rally for the time and place of the meeting with the dean's office and the instructor finds himself with a groundless complaint.

Letters to the Editor

Yule vacation starts too late, says Kaiser

To the Editor:

I wonder how many people have looked at their bulletin lately and if they have, whether they have noticed the date of this year's Christmas vacation. It is the same time as it was every year, but this year it starts only two weeks before Christmas and ends six days after New Year's day.

Perhaps we were taking too much for granted in the past to assume that those who were short of pin money for gifts would always have the opportunity to purchase them during the week before Christmas.

Now, however, it is easily seen that such an opportunity is not being provided this year. Why? The objection of splitting the week up is not valid because it has been done very successfully every year in the spring term and last year in the Christmas term. In fact, from where I sit, I can find no reason in the world for this action.

This is the job of the buildings and grounds department. Ogden field, which at present has the appearance of a run-down alley, is the only place on campus which affords outdoor recreational facilities for the students.

Perhaps we are a little naive, but we feel that the $300 which we pay for tuition, a small amount should go toward the maintenance of recreational facilities for the students. That the rest of the student body is 100 per cent behind us in feeling that we are not asking too much to have Ogden field maintained as a place in which to engage in athletics.

More about Ogden field

To the Editor:

It seems that a new development has occurred recently in the Ogden garbage dump problem. One of the men from Mr. Paholakis' squad has suggested what seems to him, a logical solution to the playing field situation: "Why not recruit some of the students for the purpose of creating an innovation at Tech — an athletic field?"

This job is the duty of the buildings and grounds department. Ogden field, which at present has the appearance of a run-down alley, is the only place on campus which affords outdoor recreational facilities for the students.

Perhaps we are a little naive, but we feel that the $300 which we pay for tuition, a small amount should go toward the maintenance of recreational facilities for the students. That the rest of the student body is 100 per cent behind us in feeling that we are not asking too much to have Ogden field maintained as a place in which to engage in athletics.

Each week a cartoon of Chesterfield's will be awarded to the writer of the letter considered most interesting by the editors of Technology News.

This week's winner is Yule Kaiser

"Sea of glass" forces IFC move to park field

Action must be taken to change the terrible condition of our sports stadium, Ogden field. Pressure groups ranging from the students up to the athletic department have been clamoring for improved playing field conditions. The only change made by the administration has been for the worse.

Glass-filled ditches were filled with dirt, and the drainage (7) of the field is so poor that a student group has finally taken the matter into its own hands.

To quote a memorandum given to all social fraternities: "To insure the personal health of its members, each and every member of the Interfraternity council, is hereby directed that the remainder of the fall quarter be spent at Armour field."

With Illinois Tech's developing and extremely strong football team, this is a step in the right direction. It is a step toward becoming a well-known campus, which is a step toward becoming a well-known campus.

Last chance to buy your '51 Integral

"The Integral staff will no longer be responsible for the distribution of the '51 Integral," said Joe Rodger, editor of the '51 book, this week. At the present time there are enough copies of the '51 Integral to supply all those who ordered books but have not as yet received them. After Nov. 21, however, all remaining copies will be disposed of; so it is imperative that those desiring books get them before that date.

To obtain a book which has been ordered and paid for, simply mail a request through campus mail to the Integral, 4827, giving the name and address of the purchaser. The book will be mailed to the purchaser by the staff.

Integral Ball queen elected by students

"Applications for Integral queen are being accepted," said Dean Johnsson, contact committee member. Applications blanks are obtainable at the TSPA office and may be returned there or to a committee member.

Dean also explained that each member will be entitled to cast two votes for the queen when they arrive, or after an informal dinner early in the evening of candidates.

No judges will be used this time. The queen and her two attendants will be elected purely by popular vote. The deadline for applications, accompanied by an 8x10 black and white photo with the contestant's and escort's name and address on the back, is Nov. 21.

Entrants must be students at Illinois Tech, or be escorted by a student staff member. Those who have received compensation previously in any manner for modeling.

Pictures will be on display at the dance and in the Student Union before the dance.

Designer speaks at ID; hails merger of schools

"I am happy to see that engineers and designers finally get together," commented architect-designer, Charles Eames, giving his opinion on the merger of Industrial Design with ITT. Eames spoke Monday at ID to students and public in a question and answer session.

In elaborating his position on the relation of engineers and designers, he said that the industrial designer has learned what we mean by "quality" but has failed to learn any more about his role in the building of industrial products.

"My wife, Raye, has become a partner in my work and is especially good at relating color to architecture. Working along with us are four fellows, each with his own genius in a phase of the work," he explained.

"Their work is not by intention a pure creative work but is rather a pure practical work. In the end, it is an act of shared vision that will be used by the public."

"I believe that the actual pieces of furniture I am building now, in a sense, are permanent, but not necessarily that artist, and can be discarded without a sense of guilt when an improved version is developed." In 1948 Eames introduced the first version of his chair, 2000 of which are now being sold each month. In commenting on his article, he mentioned that many manufacturers at first interested in the chair, finally a company accepted it only as a novelty, because it was a good place to put stuff.

Eames was questioned about his feeling on the change of the ID graduate as compared to those of graduates of a so-called "conventional" design school. He feels that if a man can actually produce and does so well, he is worth employing. "I think that ID students go into the field with an enormous amount of that practical proficiency that every employer wants."

International club formed

A new organization will be founded on the Illinois Tech campus. The proposed name for this group is the International club, which also describes its purpose and goal.

To quote Don Hixon, one of the club's founders: "We want to bring American and foreign students closer together. One can be achieved by social affairs and discussion groups. Interest in an organization of this type was furthered by the success of the tea for foreign students sponsored by the home economics department.

Two other faculty members, Fred Richter and Mollie Cohen, are also sponsoring the proposed club.

Many of the present plans for the organization have been made by Susan Haas, a student from Thornton.

An organizational meeting has been scheduled for 1 p.m. Thursday in B 116. There are no restrictions to membership in this club, which is open to all American and foreign students.

Lost articles go on block Tuesday noon

Keto, cent, slate rule, chemistry equipment, and almost anything you can think of will be auctioned off Tuesday from noon to 2 p.m. in the ISU auditorium. Frank Waters, chairman of the Student Union committee, says the collection consists of lost articles picked up around campus. Ditt explained that there is so much to be auctioned off that it might be necessary to extend the auction another day.

All money derived from sale of the lost articles goes to ISBA to be distributed to worthy campus organizations.

Hats, Lab reports, and a meat grinder are among the lost-and-found items to be auctioned off Tuesday. Here Sabol, left, and Jane Gregor display the articles.
