Freshwomen Commuters Elected!

by Dana Broach

In ATS elections Tuesday and Wednesday, 320 Tech students elected two freshwomen commuters to the ATS Executive Council: Suzanne McCutcheon will succeed Dave Epstein as Assistant Treasurer this spring; and Pamela Rekar, after running without any opposition on the ballot, will take over as ATS Secretary. Thomas Barr, also without opposition, will head the Junior Class as its president. Alan Brodecki won out over the other three nominees for the Freshman class presidency. The students who bothered to vote overwhelmingly agreed to amend the ATS Constitution to eliminate the use of the troublesome voter cards in selection of Assemblymen.

Applications for the positions of Editor-in-chief of Technology News for the Spring Semester and Editor-in-Chief and Business Manager of next year's Student Directory are now being accepted. All applicants should submit their resumes to George Bushnell, University Relations, in the basement of the Commons. THE DEADLINE FOR APPLICATIONS IS MONDAY, DECEMBER 6.

The ATS Assembly has forwarded a copy of the report of the President's Advisory Council Advisory Commission, accepted with minor changes last week, to Dr. Retallick. The thrust of the report calls for the immediate re-institution and implementation of the PAC. Their aim is to create a forum in which the faculty, students, and administration can begin to communicate. Some specific recommendations of the PACAC are in the areas of purpose and structure. "As the general headings for PAC to concern itself with we suggest: student-faculty-administration relations; student life; educational affairs; and any other matter the President requests advice on."

The PACAC report emphasized the advisory nature of the PAC. "It is a decision making body and has no power to compel anyone to act as it sees fit.

In structure, the report strongly supported an agenda for the meetings. Last year's PAC operated without any format. Each group would caucus before the actual PAC meeting to discuss the topics they wish to see brought up before the President.

As to membership, it was recommended that 9 students be selected as representatives: 2 from the ATS Executive Council; 1 each from IDC, IFC, CTA, Kent, and the Graduate Student Association; and two students-at-large. The number of faculty representatives and administration members should not exceed the number of students on the PAC. Nominations are now being considered by IDC, IFC, and CTA. IDC will meet Tuesday at 9:30 pm.

Stalemate in Chapel Dispute?

None of the issues in the dispute between the Community Thrift Merchandising Club (CTMC) and the IIT administration have been definitely settled since the arrest of three CTMC members on Nov. 17. However, the administration has released to Technology News a clarification of their position on the dispute.

Glenn Doventti, a 19-year-old Chemistry major here at IIT, apparently committed suicide last Friday evening. Doventti was a commuter who lived with his family at 6606 S. Rockwell. No reason for the suicide is known. The staff expresses its deepest sympathy to all family and friends.

Among the requirements to be satisfied by CTMC before negotiations can be resumed and recognition be obtained are assurances that they will not use the Chapel of St. Savior and that they will cease their present tactics, and that they will limit their membership to "residents of the IIT campus apartment buildings." The administration said that this last condition is required of all recognized university organizations utilizing campus facilities so as not to jeopardize the university's tax-exempt status.

(For a complete statement from the administration, see page two.)

According to Dr. Joseph Erwin, Chairman of CTMC, this is not all the administration has asked. Other conditions have apparently included a list of present members to be given to the administration, and agreement to limit the membership and to exclude persons from outside the campus apartments, and another agreement that CTMC deal only in fresh produce. Any changes in these conditions that would be considered by CTMC would have to be approved in writing by the IIT administration. Were all these conditions agreed to by CTMC and recognition granted, they then would have probationary status as a recognized university organization.

Dr. Erwin has offered the administration several compromise conditions. For example, if CTMC did use space on campus, the co-op would inform the administration of its size. However, since the arrests, Dr. Erwin stated that the co-op feels less concerned with obtaining university recognition (he described some of the conditions sought by the university as "emotionally offensive to people above a certain age"). One of the actions taken by CTMC has (Continued on page 3)
Everyday at IIT and IITRI, students, faculty, and research staff deal with the future of mankind. Why, then, is the IIT Administration still in the 19th Century? It is not a matter of money, as some students cynically suggest, but rather a totalitarian ideology which denies customers and employees any right to any voice in corporate policy.

Some may protest that this is unfair; that the Administration is well-meaning and the problem is one of communication. We might agree, but experience seems to say otherwise. Every suggestion from the student body has been met with hostility; every attempt at opening two-way communication met with barely concealed indifference. It seems to be one constant, tiresome battle of issues large and small. An excellent example is the present outrage over the Food Co-op and the Chapel. The recent arrest of three Food Co-op members is just one episode in a long campaign of harassment conducted by the Administration against the United Campus Ministry.

The tragedy of all this is that it is so petty — so small. Is it too much to ask that the Ministry be permitted to operate without being faced with a veto every time it starts a new project? Is a reasonable agreement with the Food Co-op so it may operate on campus such a big thing? Why, then, does the Administration persist in its authoritarian stance? It's hard to believe that the Administration could possibly consider the U.C.M. or the Food Co-op a threat to the operation of IIT. What's the hassle then?

The IIT Young Peoples Socialist League believes that things have gone too far. We call upon the Episcopal Bishop of Chicago to once-and-for-all settle the status of the Chapel, taking legal action if necessary; and we call upon the Administration to take the initiative, for once, in improving relations and opening communication between students, faculty, and the Administration.

Official IIT Statement on Chapel Controversy

“Illinois Institute of Technology is a privately-supported, not-for-profit institution of higher education. By charter, the sole responsibility for the use of campus property and facilities rests with the university's governing board.

In order to meet the responsibility of operating within local, state and federal regulations governing the university's corporate status, and in order to maintain an environment suitable for all campus residents, certain minimum conditions of operation have been requested of a group seeking to establish a food-buying cooperative on university property.

Among these conditions is the use of space in a designated campus building other than the Chapel of St. Saviour. IIT has been consistent in its position that the Chapel is not a suitable facility for food handling and distribution and cannot be used as such.

Suitable space on campus was found in a university apartment building, and has been offered to the group under those minimum conditions which include a requirement that membership must be limited to residents of the IIT campus apartment buildings. This is a condition not required of all recognized university organizations utilizing campus facilities so as not to jeopardize the university's tax-exempt status and, in the case of campus apartments, to assure controlled access to private living areas.

The leaders of the food co-op have chosen to ignore the required conditions of operation. It has stated publicly that it will use the university's Chapel regardless of university policy. Further, the food co-op staged a planned demonstration on November 17, 1971, in direct violation of university policy. Three arrests resulted.

It appears to IIT that the food co-op is conducting activities aimed at aggravating, rather than resolving, their situation. However, the university remains willing to resume negotiations in an effort to reach an equitable solution when the food co-op gives assurance they will not use the Chapel of St. Saviour and will cease their present tactics.

Until that time, IIT cannot recognize the proposed organization and will continue to enforce its policies governing the unauthorized use of campus property and facilities.”

Howard Hughes Mystery Exposed

by C. Baad
In response to the special reports from the L. A. Times concerning the well-being of Howard Hughes, Technology News reporters have made further inquiries into the welfare of the financial deity. It will be remembered that just recently a story was circulated throughout the nation's press that Mr. Hughes was in all probability dead, and had last been seen in the Las Vegas area, weighing 94 pounds, and sporting eight-inch-long fingernails.

The Technology News Task Force swung into action, and in a last minute search for printable copy, established the fact that in 1958, Playboy publishing magnate Hugh Hefner had gone into a state of seclusion in his Chicago-based Playboy Towers. Immediately catching the connection, (both Mr. Hefner and Mr. Hughes have the initials H. H.), research into a bound copy of “Who’s Who in Where?” was begun and after consuming three bottles of Ripple Wine and a flask of some substance resembling chloroform, the Technology News Task Force made the discovery that Ex-presidential candidate Hubert Humphrey also had the same telltale initials.

Having established the connection between Hughes and Hefner, it was but one step to the realization that both men are, in reality, ONE AND THE SAME PERSON!

This was easily verified by checking into Hefner's medical record, where it was discovered that he has been losing weight lately; however this has not been immediately noticeable to the general public as a result of his pregnancy. This explains the 94 pound figure attributed to Hughes.

Three joints and a hypodermic full of Ovaltine later, our reporters made the startling discovery that Mr. Hubert Humphrey is also a part of this conspiracy, and in fact everybody in the United States with the initials H. H. is actually the same person!

The ramifications of this discovery cut deep into IIT’s own politics: ATS president Harry Heifitz has not been seen on campus for several months, and the Jewish-Communist conspiracy to overthrow Woolworth’s is one step closer to its ultimate goal!

There are numerous crimes against humanity which are now easily explained in the light of the H H discovery. The murder of Huey Howton, (a member of the group himself) comes to mind. It is now up to the people themselves to round up these pigs out of their den and make them stand trial for their crimes!

The day is coming when we will be free of the capitalist money-hungry industrialists! Death to the Ward-Mogers! All Power to the Puddles! Around the World in Eighty Days! Wha! What? Hi?

been to join the Lutheran Welfare League (in order to facilitate buying and increase buying power) and is now considering accepting members from outside the IIT community, especially pastors of neighboring churches, in an effort to train them to set up their own community food co-ops.

CTMC has also sought out legal opinions on the administration's closing of the chapel. A lawyer from a prominent legal firm has indicated that the chapel closing was contrary to the original agreement.

The three arrested co-op workers went to court last Monday, Nov. 29. They were granted a trial sometime in January. Dr. Erwin said the trial would only be useful in defining CTMC's position if the judge ruled on the "substantive issues" involved.

Meanwhile, Bishop Montgomery has suggested a panel of three members to conduct binding arbitration of the dispute, CTMC has agreed to this proposal and has approved the three members. No reply has yet been received from the administration, The New World Co-Op, a food co-op that had been operating on the campus of Northwestern University, was shut down by Evanston city officials about two weeks ago.

Triangle was down 14-0 at halftime, but shut off Knot Hole’s explosive offense in the second half, and punched across 2 TD’s and 2 conversions for the win...

Triangle almost completed another big comeback to win another IFC sport, but the Alpha Epsilon Pi Fraternity doubles team of Tom O’Neill and Ed Fried romped to give AEPi the IFC ping-pong crown. Weiner and Fried (who was called “the beastliest no. 2 bat on the Quad”) each won their singles matches 3 straight. But Triangle won the next 2 singles matches to tie it up, setting the stage for the climactic finale. Weiner, the Quad’s top player this year, and Fried, were too much for Triangle’s Art Caminio and Tim Martin, winning 21-17, 21-16, and 21-19. AEPi, who also boasted of Steve Bogolu, Jeff Friedman, and “Bread” Wirtzel on the team among others, went undefeated in IFC play. They showed one of the strongest teams in IFC history.

General Cassidy At IIT

Brigadier General B. B. Cassidy, Commandant of Air Force ROTC, visited the IIT unit just before Thanksgiving. The General spoke with cadets and asked for their opinions about the IIT campus and its reaction to ROTC. He also answered questions about the AFROTC program.

The General was asked about haircuts, pay increases, scholarships, and the emphasis on flying in AFROTC. He told cadets that he presented a case for longer hair to the Pentagon but that the proposal was rejected. With regard to the increases in pay and in scholarships, General Cassidy informed students that the increases were in a bill before Congress. (The bill was recently passed by Congress.) He also stressed the importance of non-flying positions in the Air Force (missile work, for instance).

In a ceremony before the discussion, General Cassidy presented awards to Kevin Cal and Andy Bizub. The awards were for soling in a private aircraft.

Varsity Basketball Season Begins This Saturday

by Harvey Schultz

With three outstanding players gone from last year’s squad, it would seem impossible that the 1971-72 IIT basketball team could equal last year’s super 19-6 record. Gone are starters Greg Kenner, Andy Pride, and Dwayne Rhetta, who averaged more than 50 points and more than half the team’s rebounds in a game between them. In spite of the tremendous loss in personnel, this year’s squad returns some very talented players who are going to surprise any opponent who decides to take the Techwucks lightly.

Leading the charge this year will be team captain Greg Parker. This senior from De LaSalle High School is the quickest Techwuck, and one of the fastest guards in the Midwest. He is expected to be the offensive general this year, as well as resuming once again his task of guarding the foe’s toughest offensive guard, a job he performed with distinction the past three years.

Expected to give Greg a great deal of help at the backcourt position are Wayne Boss (sophomore, Chicago Christian H.S.), junior John Bartok (Thornridge), and junior Steve Marciszewski (Weber). Last year’s no. 3 guard, Boss is proven under game conditions. His tough defense and scoring prowess make him destined to be one of the finest guards in the Chicago area. He should be a top scorer on the club. Bartok has the speed and agility to be a fine, all-around guard. He plays a tough D (that’s defense, fans). Marciszewski is up from the Junior Varsity and shows the skills that should make the Techwucks’ guard picture look healthy.

Leading the charge on the forward line will be big and rugged Ken Wayne (St. Ignatius). A three year regular, Ken will once again put his defensive skills to work while guarding the opponent’s best big man, and should be the club’s rebounder. Wayne has the soft, long jumper to score from the corner, and the beef to rack up points in heavy traffic. Sophomore Tom Skahill (De La Salle) is another strong and rugged player who will probably start in the middle. Skahill has a deadly short jumper and can hook the ball, and has excellent rebounding skills.

The trio of Leroy Smith (Junior, Virgin Islands), Jim Talkie (Freshman, Joliet Catholic), and Terry Majerski (freshman, Mendel), will provide forward depth. Leroy is the best leaper on the Techwucks, and, if his potential can be brought out, the tools to be an all-around star. Talkie is an exceptional jumper, and could be the strongest Techwuck. Majerski is the quickest Hawk big man. His speed makes him an outstanding prospect. One of these three will probably start, the others giving the Hawks a strong bench. Another prospect who looms large in the Hawks forward picture is Greg Kuehl, a freshman who looks good in practice.

The Junior Varsity has a number of fine young prospects who give the JV depth, and augur well for the future of the Varsity. Besides Kuehl, they are freshmen Bob Frantz, a huge pivotman, forward Chuck Snyder, and guards Bruce Glawe and Ron Johnson. The Junior Varsity will be piloted by Hawk assistant coach Rich Swanson. They’ll play a 13 game slate. Three or four of the JV members will play this schedule and also dress with the Varsity.

As an overall personnel summary, it can be said that this year’s squad, though lacking the uncanny individual skills of a Pride or a Kenner, has more overall team strength than the 1970-71 Techwucks. This overall strength will mean that the Hawks will play a more disciplined team game than in the past. The Junior Varsity shows depth and talent, and should help the Varsity this year. Greg Parker and Ken Wayne are expected to provide the leadership in making this a highly successful season.

So this, Coach Tony Delgado’s first club he can call his own, will take the court tomorrow night against Northeastern Illinois at Arthur Keating Hall. His club should be different from last year’s big team. Both last year and this, the Hawks are playing a pattern offense. This means a lot of passing and probing at the defense until a Hawk finds himself with an open shot. Last year, if the pattern failed, the Hawks turned to Pride or Kenner, with their unique, individual skills. This year, we can look for more discipline. That is, if the Techwucks can break themselves of their bad habits by gametime.

The Hawks in pre-season practice, have not shown the full amount of discipline they will need. If there is one thing missing so far, it is control. This is what Coach Delgado hopes he has drilled into his players’ psyches, and what will become second nature to them. Upon that rests the final disposition of the 1971-72 Techwucks’ record. In any respect, the coaching staff has worked very hard to get the team ready, and it should be a good ball club. The Techwucks will be exciting, and I hope all of you will come out to Arthur Keating Hall and find out for your own sakes how much fun college basketball, and IIT’s in particular, can be. The game starts at 8 pm. Try to be there.

DOUBLE DRIBBLES: The Junior Varsity has really looked good in the pre-season. It’s made up entirely of freshmen, as the sophomores from last year’s JV are all no longer with the team. However, both Jim McCrickard and John Wakefield, an asthma sufferer, might be back for the spring term . . . . . .

Sorry, G.A. Because of surgery (on my column, I left out the score of the St. Xavier scrimmage. Well, the Hawks won it, 73-69. Incidentally, in the other two scrimmages, IIT beat North Central, 71-69 on November 16, and then lost on the road to Aurora, 78-77, on Nov 22 . . . . After the opener, the Hawks play at AKH Tuesday night, Dec. 7, vs. Lake Forest, and then travel two nights later to Rockford for a clash with the Regents . . . Rich Swanson’s JVers actually see IIT’s first action tomorrow night, when they play Northeastern’s yearlings beginning at 5:45. That should be a good match also. The JV also play Tuesday night against Lake Forest . . .

NOTES: The IIT swim team competed in a meet yesterday at Eureka College, and are swimming today at 4 pm at Illinois College down in Jacksonville. Coach Denny Matuch has a large squad, 17 swimmers and 2 divers, meaning a lot of depth. The Techwucks have been helped immensely by diving coach Bill Wendt, who works over at IGT, and who has been a great boon to the club. The swimmers also have a meet this week, at home against George (Continued on page 7)
