Faculty Meet on Pass-Fail

At Tuesday's ATS meeting, it was reported that the pass-fail proposal has been recommended by the Faculty Senate. The proposal will be considered by the ATS Senate on February 25.

Speaking to the approximately 15 attendees present, Chuck Hare indicated that Faculty Senate approval is expected by the end of the month. The Senate is planning a special meeting for this purpose.

The Assembly also indicated that the student and faculty members of the Student's Advisory Council are planning a meeting for Friday, March 4, to discuss the proposal. The Senate will meet on March 26, hopefully by the end of the month.

A motion to present the test for Senate was made by the end of the meeting.

New Chapel Controversy?

On Tuesday, Feb. 8, IIT President John Houck announced the creation of a Chapel Committee, which is composed of students, faculty, and administration. The committee will meet every two weeks to discuss the Chapel's future.

The Committee will also be responsible for developing a new chapel program, which will include activities such as prayer meetings, Bible study groups, and community service events.

The Committee's first meeting was held on February 10, with a special focus on discussing the Chapel's current location and potential new locations.

Architecture School

The Architecture School was recently awarded the American Institute of Architects (AIA) Gold Medal for its outstanding contributions to architecture education.

The AIA Gold Medal is the highest honor that can be given to an educational institution for its contributions to architecture education. The AIA Gold Medal will be presented to the Architecture School on May 1 at the AIA's annual convention.

The Architecture School has been recognized for its innovative curriculum and dedication to the development of future architects. The school has also been praised for its strong emphasis on sustainability and environmental design.

Humanities Dept. to Award Cash in IIT Writing Contest

Once again this year the Department of Humanities is sponsoring a Writing Contest with prizes totaling $500. The contest is open to students enrolled under the annual Edwin H. Lewis Prize, amounting to $100 and the Humanities Department Prize of $50 per annum, anonymously donated by an alumnus.

The Edwin H. Lewis Prize was awarded through a grant to the IIT Department of Humanities by Edwin G. Nourse, a 1964 graduate of the School of Architecture. The prize is open to all full-time students at IIT, except for freshmen and students who are on the faculty or in any full-time position.

If you wish to receive additional information, contact the Department of Humanities at 1129 E. 33rd St.

When asked if he knew whether the new director would come from within the institution, the president said, "we will be able to find the best person for the job from the outside." He added, "I have been impressed with the qualifications of several candidates."
Farewell to a True Professional...

It's not easy working on a newspaper like Technology News, especially when you consider all the occupational hazards that come along with it, like losing sleep, getting bad grades, and having everybody on both sides of an issue get mad at you for writing the facts.

There is, however, one person who has been working on Technology News longer than anybody else, and she doesn't even go to IT. That person is Harold Osborne, the chief composer for Bankers Print. When all the other staff workers have washed their hands of the paper and called it quits on Wednesdays, Osborne's work is just beginning.

It is his job to take the printed articles we've all been working on and turn them into a honest-to-goodness newspaper page. He juggles lines, stretches a two-inch story, and craves a twelve-inch item into a three-inch hole.

After many years of this madness, however, Harold has finally returned to his senses and will retire after this issue. Although we wish him all the luck in the world with his new home in Florida, the staff really miss his talents.

The Staff of Technology News

In an age when everything is mass-produced, when ideals of "quality" and "integrity" take second place to "super-efficiency" and "quantity," it is very refreshing to know that there are still a few people around who consider their work meaningful and relevant. These are the people who keep their trade consistently and deserve the name of "craftsmen."

Harold Osborne is one of those people, one craftsman who knows his business and performs accordingly. In the few semesters that I have been in contact with the Osborne family ("Mr. Osborne" never existed as far as the paper was concerned) I have never failed to be impressed by the way he went about putting the newspaper into its final form.

I suppose that anybody who has a job to do will try his best, what finally comes out represents his efforts just as much as the efforts of the staff and editors. That Harold put out his best goes without saying.

Dear EIC:

I call your attention to an apparent misinterpretation in the February 4th edition of your publication. Specifically, it was shown that Dean Gebhardt, who is also a student in the University, has an interest in the subject of this article and is more involved than previously reported. Therefore I am writing to express my concern with the interpretation of the article as it appeared in the February 4th issue. I believe that the article did not accurately reflect the views and interests of Dean Gebhardt, and I feel that it was misleading in its presentation.

The article failed to mention that Dean Gebhardt has been actively involved in the EEC for several years. He is also a member of the University's publishes 'Technology News' and has written several articles for the publication. In addition, he has been a member of the Technology Student Association and has participated in several campus activities.

I believe that the article should be corrected to reflect these facts. The misinterpretation of Dean Gebhardt's role in the Technology News could have negative consequences for future articles and could lead to a misunderstanding of his contribution to the publication. I urge you to consider making these corrections in the near future.

Sincerely yours,

Cagers Play .500 Ball; Majerks Out For Year

by Barry Schein

You won some, you lose a few more... BASKETBALL! There is a sick joke floating around that talks about the mad scientist who develops a potion for eternal youth. He administers the elixir to two patients and then views the results. "Well, the 75-year-old looked 17," said, "but what's this — we saved the baby!"

By matching the point a bit, we can draw an analogy between this story and week no. 11 of the 1971-72 Techawk basketball season. On Feb. 2, the Techawks faced Lake Forest College, 6-14 at the time, and cruised to a 71-59 win. Three days later, the Hawks met 15-5 U of Wisconsin at Green Bay team and got blown out of the gym, 98-64. So after a week devoid of upsets, the Techawks sat at 10-9, not including last night's rematch with Lewis College.

Lake Forest never got within striking distance of the Hawks at the team's beautiful gymnasium, as everyone got into the ITT act. The 71-59 score is not indicative of the Hawks' dominance, but it does show the reserves overtook, ITT scored almost at will and took the game into several other games. LFC got close at the end, as the Hawks scored only 11 points in the last 10 minutes of the game, but by then it was all over. Kameko scored 21 to top honors for the Techawks with 17 points. Tom Shidell scored 13 and Wayne Bowers 11, as everyone saw limited duty. Ed Cochran was game high, with 21.

The trip to Tilden, U.S.A. (AACA Green Bay, Wisconsin), however, proved to be a waltz. The Hawks looked only at 5-3 before being swallowed up by the chargers from UW-Green Bay. Wayne led ITT once more, with 22.

The loss was the worst suffered by the Hawks this year from the Viewpoint of the final point margin. Coach Tony Dlugec offered a truism when he said, "we've got to get our shooting charge in early. You can't win by shooting 33% to 37% in the first half. We let it get away from us early." The Techawks missed four layups early in the first half which didn't help matters. The Phoenix shot 49%, meanwhile, and got this, 17-22 from the charity stripe.

So in a light stretch of action for the Techawks, they face U of Illinois-Chicago next Tuesday night, and meet Northeastern Illinois one week from tonight, kicking off ITT Homecoming activities. That game will be on the Golden Eagles' home court, which should be an omen of our school's homecoming. Tom Shidell remains in the Techawks' leading scorer, averaging 15.6 points per game. Kent Wayne is third with 15.1 ppm.

SWIMMERS: The Techawk swim team finished in eleventh place in the Rockford Relays, held at Rockford College on Saturday, Feb. 5. A total of 17 teams were invited to this 10th annual swim championship which has become more popular in Illinois college swimming. The relays consist of seven different swimming relays and one two-man diving event. Host Rockford won the Relays, with 45 points. Grinnell College was second with 30. The Techawks, in 11th, had one point.

The next best finish by ITT was seventh in the 300 yard breaststroke relay, won by Steve Murray, Gerry Wazly, and Gary Copeland (3:39.4). The Hawks also took ninth in the three relay relays and had a 11th, 12th, and 12th to cover all the events for a very respectable showing. The relays are going to be an important part of the Winter League Championships.

BOWLING: Coach Ed Blake's bowlers returned from a long lay off to down Loyola 7-4 at the HUB Rec Room. Andy Black's 143 series led the way for the Hawks. They won three of the five games, and got the bonus point for most total pins.

The Hawks' next match is this Sunday at Loras College in Dubuque, Iowa. Coach Blitch has a fine club, and it is in a good position to win the MICC.

Club De Fledge ITT: The Techawk hockey club played poorly last Sunday, Feb. 6, and were blasted 8-0 by Lewis College at Twin Ice Forum. Captains Mike Glynis and John Carter and their band of predators had a match yesterday vs. Chicago State, and are in for a tough weekend of action. The home games of Twin Ice for a chance against Marquette Valley Community College on Tuesday. The facsimile is at 9 pm, and your support will be greatly appreciated. The Hawks, 6-6 before yesterday's action, are a fine club.

Tecnozons Have you ever wanted to torture your engineering professor? Or murder all that much liberal arts? Well, next Tuesday night is "Take Our Frustrations Out on Wives." Three of the five events will be our own Tecnozons.
