Mansfield: "I'm No Economist"

by Dan Vukelic

Last Tuesday at 2:00 pm Senator Mike Mansfield, Democratic Majority Leader of the U.S. Senate, was on interesting for the view of the economy and recent economic developments. Mansfield's address was held at the same time and as President Gerald Ford accepted the place in the White House.

But the introduction of the two was not the only event. At the press conference, Mansfield explained that the economic forecast for the coming year looks bright. However, the dollar is weakening, and the government must continue to work on a strong dollar policy. Mansfield also stressed the importance of education and training for American workers.

"In summary," said Mansfield, "we must continue to work on a strong dollar policy, invest in education and training, and ensure that American workers have the skills they need to compete in the global economy."
Honoray Fraternity Holds Meeting

There will be a meeting for anyone interested in joining Tau Beta Pi and who has received a letter of invitation. The meeting will be held on Thursday, Oct. 24 at 12:00 noon in dining rooms A & B of the HUB. All members and prospective members should attend.

Overnight Dorm Rooms Available

Have a late evening class or a heavy early morning exam schedule? If so, consider reserving one of the overnight accommodations in the Residence Halls. A weekend stay on the campus would ease the heavy situation. Rates begin at 12:00 AM of Saturday and range from $2.00 to $2.50 per night. Arrangements may be made at the Housing Office, located on the lower floor of the Residence Halls. Requests for overnight accommodations should be made prior to 7:00 pm on the day before the date requested.

Four Teachers Needed

ITT will hold the annual Teachers Day on Sunday, October 20. Prospectuses of students and their careers, parents and counselors will be invited to attend a day of sessions in the ITT's academic departments and with students and administrators. Any student interested in serving as a tour guide for the day and who has not been previously contacted, should call Russell Hulbert in the Admissions Office, ext. 362.

Inaugural "Pep" Game

Dr. I. R. Seger will speak on "Game Theory and How They can be Improved" on October 21 at 12 noon in Room 615 S. All ITT affiliated people are invited sponsored by the Student Association.

Romeo and Just

On October 24, 1974, the Chicago Sun-Times reported that "Romeo and Juliet" was being performed at the Chicago Theatre. The play, which is based on the story of two star-crossed lovers, is a timeless classic that has been adapted and performed countless times over the years. The production on this particular night included a cast of talented performers who brought the characters to life in a way that captivated the audience.

Theatre

October 12, 1974, at 8:00 pm in the S. Deering Auditorium, Mr. George Seger, the City's Supervisor of Education, will be speaking on "Theatre Education: Reality, Relevance, and Reformation." The A B meeting will be held at 8:00 pm on the theme of "Theatre Education: Reality, Relevance, and Reformation." The meeting will be open to the public. Interested parties are encouraged to attend.

Norton Board Appointments

The Norton Board Appointments Committee will meet on October 31 and November 2 at 7:30 pm. Applications for these positions will be accepted until November 15. The positions include: Norton Board Members, Norton Board Officers, and Norton Board Advisors. Interested parties are encouraged to apply.

Mies Lecture

On the occasion of October 2, 2014, the School of Architecture and Planning presented the first of the landmark Mies van der Rohe Awards for Art. During the Spring of 1973 an introductory lecture was given by Alfredo Calderoli and it was received so well that the School decided to continue them. Thus this past week the series was launched with the lectures of Dr. George Wald, biologist and educator from Harvard, whose long list of degrees and honors is topped by the Nobel Prize in Physiology or Medicine.

Dr. Wald will be speaking on "Life in the Universe," and he began by stating that, if we estimated the probability that in the galaxy we can see from Earth there are perhaps more than 100 billion planets that could support life, he was sure that it was not possible for this to happen. Therefore, we must realize that we must just keep trying to study and to find other planets where life could exist. He then proceeded to develop the idea, and at the end of the talk, he briefly stated that, while we cannot conclude that there is life on other planets, we cannot yet rule it out. He concluded the lecture with a statement that there is life in the universe, and we must keep searching for it.

The final lecture was called "Art and Meaning," and began with a glowing review of her writing: "One can gain knowledge from words, but wisdom only from life." Dr. Wald said that science and art were almost a line in the same direction, that science seeks wisdom from words, and that art expresses wisdom. Dr. Wald then showed slides and displayed some samples of his favorite works of art—those works whose true meaning is something that we can only understand by living.
BFGoodrich, a large tire manufacturer, is recalling some of its products due to safety concerns. The recall affects approximately 40,000 tires sold under the BFGoodrich name between 2012 and 2015. The issue involves the tires' sidewalls, which may detach from the tire core, posing a safety risk to drivers. BFGoodrich has urged all affected customers to stop using the recalled tires and contact a local dealership for further instructions. The recall is the latest in a string of safety concerns faced by the tire industry, which has struggled with quality control issues in recent years. Other major tire manufacturers have also been affected by recalls, including Michelin and Goodyear, who have had to recall millions of tires over various safety concerns. The tire industry is facing increased scrutiny from regulators and consumers alike, and manufacturers are being urged to prioritize safety over profit margins.
UB and Campus Life

UNION BOARD—That’s the name of the campus student organization that is charged with the responsibility of providing recreational activities such as movies, concerts, beer blasts and other diversions for the student body. The problems Union Board is experiencing this semester are complex and there really is no one person or group of people to blame. The greatest indicator that there is something wrong is the attendance of UB events.

The problem of student participation in the activities is a function of three basics: firstly, promotion of an event is necessary but may not be enough, and secondly, student interest in the event. A third factor is the coordination of the event which, if done well, could bring about further student attendance.

Promotion of UB events is very important. The University has a position for a director of publicity, but it is as yet unfilled. The publicity area director would be responsible for advertising UB events every week. UB events now have a 90 percent no-show rate. Each area director is responsible for trying to organize publicity in Technology News (advertising), posters around campus and word of mouth. Although they have no one doing the specific job of publicity, and they may be using the resources they have available, publicity on the whole this semester has been hard.

The UB Newsletter was, according to UB personnel, successful. Its objective was to recruit new members for UB, to line up if it did its job, but it was supposed to keep students informed as to what events were coming up if it failed. The failure was in the attempt to communicate to a large body of student exactly what to expect from UB. Union Board has also cut back the amount of advertising in Technology News this semester, UB has, in effect, worked on their first chance to communicate with the student.

The second area of problems centers around student interest in activities. Admissions officers have not been for a very long time a school with a very active and involved student body. UB feels that their publicity has little or no effect on students. They feel that the students just don’t respond to their advertising. If it is that students share responsibility for the poor attendance at UB activities. A lot of students prefer to sit in the cafeteria or lounge areas than take advantage of some of the really good events UB last week.

The third area of coordination of resources and planning of events can determine whether a student comes back to another UB event or not. An example of this was the UB Invitational Tricycle race last weekend. Not only was there some poor attendance, a whole lot of UB publicity, and poor student participation, but the event seemed poorly coordinated. There were complaints that the races in the three divisions started at the wrong time, many entrants didn’t know the rules of the game, and the prizes given away to the few contest entrants seem exorbitant.

Certainly things could be better with the way things are run with UB, we recognize the fact that they, like all student organizations are understaffed and overworked. We feel however that the over-all lack in the success of a UB event is good advertisement and promotion. We welcome your comments and suggestions.

Free Personal

In this tradition stretching back whole semesters, TN is presenting the FEDERAL STREET NEWS & BLUES for three weeks. So a spur to get more non-TP people to participate: we are permitting, for this Nov., issue only, FREELANCE PERSONALS. That’s right, it’ll be just like old times, but a brief comment of significance to very few, but so many that everyone will probably catch on to one or two. And, yes, there will be no penny-a-charge. And while still submitting personalis, maybe someone of you would like to try something of greater substance—humor, satire, anecdotes, even fiction, cartoons, photos, anything. We have a lot planned, some things that have probably never been tried before, but we want it to be more than a TN. We’ll give it a try this one issue. Send poetry, song lyrics, anything you’ve done that you don’t want to pass away. Deadline: Monday, October 26th, 1974.
Creativity Lost

beauty was derived not just from appearance, but also the purpose they served. The finest example was an ancient cochin shell which was also used as a horn. He blew into it and a loud clear tone was sounded right away. It was a

A pretty shell, but its capacity to serve as a single instrument was limited by the fact that it could not remain in one place for very long. Dr. Wald thought about it for a long time, but he also found that the shell was not very easy to use. He tried using it in a few other ways, but none of them worked well.

The next day, Dr. Wald went to a laboratory to test different materials. He tried using metal, plastic, and even plastic. He found that metal was the best material, and he decided to use it for his new instrument. He worked on it for a few months, and finally he was ready to present it to the world.

The world was amazed when Dr. Wald announced his new instrument. It was called the "Bell of Magic." The instrument was made of metal, and it could play a wide range of notes. It was a revolutionary invention, and it quickly became popular. Dr. Wald was praised for his work, and he continued to improve the instrument over the years.

Jim Carroll enjoys working with a vicious killer.

Just three years out of college, laser technologist Jim Carroll didn't make senior research physicist at Eastman Kodak Company by acting timid. So when he had the courage to pit science against a dread disease, we backed him. Win or lose.

The medical community enlisted Kodak's help in training lasers on the war on cancer. We responded with a pair of 500 million watt laser systems. And left the rest up to Jim.

In time, the lasers proved unsuccessful in treating cancer, but we'd do it again if we had to. Because while we're in business to make a profit, we care what happens to society. It's the same society our business depends on.

ART CINEMA

By Michael Blake

Art Cinema is a feature writer's dream: a seasoned veteran whose career has been punctuated by successes and failures, but who is now being hailed as the savior of the disputable masses. Here are some of the key points that make this feature an interesting read:

1. Art Cinema's Early Career
   - Art Cinema's early career was marked by a string of failures, including a failed film project that cost him his job at the local newspaper.

2. The Big Breakthrough
   - After years of hard work and dedication, Art Cinema finally got his big break with a successful film that earned him a nomination for Best Director at the annual film festival.

3. The Challenge of the Role
   - The role of the director in a film is a challenging one, requiring a balance of creativity, technical skill, and collaboration with actors and crew.

4. Art Cinema's Unique Voice
   - Art Cinema has a unique voice that sets him apart from other directors, with a focus on exploring the human condition in a way that is both thought-provoking and accessible.

5. The Impact of Art Cinema
   - Art Cinema's films have had a significant impact on the industry, inspiring a new generation of filmmakers and influencing the way stories are told on screen.

The next game in town is the top two teams in the Western Hockey League. This game is expected to be a high-intensity affair with both teams vying for the top spot in the league.

The St. Louis Blues are favored to win, but the Vancouver Canucks are not to be discounted.

The Blues have been on a roll recently, while the Canucks have been inconsistent. However, the Blues have struggled in recent games,

and the Canucks have been on a hot streak.

The game will feature two top-tier goalies in net for both teams. The Blues' Mike Babcock is expected to face

off against the Canucks' Kirk McLean.
